

Equal Status Acts 2000–2011

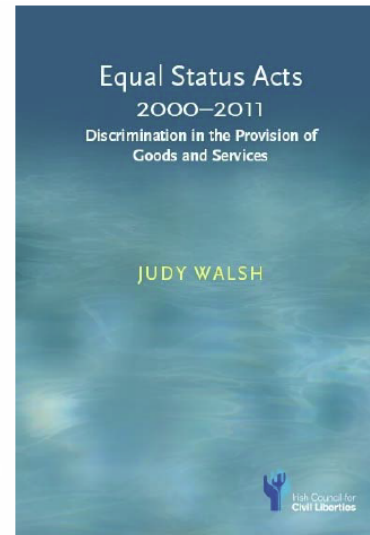

Discrimination in the Provision of Goods and Services

Judy Walsh

For over a decade the Equal Status Acts have outlawed discrimination in the provision of goods, services, education and accommodation. This book, commissioned by the Irish Council for Civil Liberties (ICCL), provides accurate, comprehensive information about the operation of the law in practice. It explains the types of actions or omissions that amount to discrimination, examines relevant case law and looks at how the Acts are enforced.

This book informs a broad range of audiences about the influential Equal Status Acts:

- Legal practitioners and their clients
- Legislators and policy makers
- Academics and students
- Advocates and advice providers
- Non-governmental organisations
- Providers of goods, services, accommodation and education

Purchase your copy of this publication via the ICCL at a special rate of €40

The book is currently on sale in book stores RRP €50

If you wish to pay by Credit Card, please complete the form below and send to:

Irish Council for Civil Liberties, 9-13 Blackhall Place, Dublin 7

Cheques should be made payable to the Irish Council for Civil Liberties.

Suggested donations to support the work of the ICCL would also be greatly appreciated.

.....

Credit Card Payment

Name _____

Address _____

Phone or Email _____

Number of copies _____ at €40 per copy / Chargeable amount _____

Card number _____

Security Code _____

Valid from _____

Expiry Date _____

Issue number _____