Universal Periodic Review Ireland

Submission by the Irish Civil Society Coalition,
Your Rights. Right Now. for the 25th Session of the UPR Working Group April/May 2016

All of the views expressed in this report do not necessarily reflect the policies and positions of each endorsing organisation.

About: A coalition of 17 Irish NGOs, trade unions and civil society groups was established by the Irish Council for Civil Liberties (ICCL) in 2010 to coordinate the civil society response to Ireland's first examination under the Universal Periodic Review. This group was re-convened by the ICCL in 2015 in advance of Ireland's second examination and two new members have joined. The coalition conducted a number of general and thematic consultations and invited written submissions. Further information on the membership of the coalition and consultation process can be found in the main text of this submission and in Annex A, B and C. This civil society stakeholder report was submitted to the UN on 21 September 2015. Additional background information and testimonies were added to the published version of this report launched on 15 December 2015.

Introduction

This civil society response was coordinated under the campaign identity, Your Rights. Right Now.<sup>1</sup> by 17 Irish NGOs, trade unions and civil society groups that operate as the UPR Cross Sectoral Steering Group convened by the Irish Council for Civil Liberties.<sup>2</sup> The content of the report was influenced extensively by information gathered at consultations held across Ireland<sup>3</sup>, in partnership with the Irish Human Rights and Equality Commission, and in collaboration with the Department of Justice and Equality. 56 written submissions were received.<sup>4</sup>

The report has been endorsed by 52 organisations.<sup>5</sup> It follows up on recommendations from Ireland's first UPR,<sup>6</sup> referenced throughout, and raises new issues arising since 2011.

Two overarching issues which emerged were the lack of disaggregated data pertaining to a range of areas where human rights are engaged and the impact of the economic crisis on the enjoyment of human rights.<sup>7</sup> Despite the State's previously accepted recommendations to protect the most vulnerable in the wake of the economic crisis,<sup>8</sup> a lack of disaggregated data makes it difficult to identify the impact of austerity measures on vulnerable groups.<sup>9</sup> Furthermore, human rights impact assessments of economic recovery plans are not carried out as a basis for future budgets and strategic planning.<sup>10</sup>

Background & Framework

A. Policy Measures

Since Ireland's first UPR, the State has still not adopted a National Human Rights Action Plan. A national programme of human rights and equality education for civil and public servants has not been adopted and human rights/equality proofing of legislation and policy is not carried out in a systematic manner.<sup>11</sup>

In 2015, the Government established the Interdepartmental Committee on Human Rights (IDCHR) to improve coherence in the signature and ratification of treaties and fulfilment of reporting obligations.<sup>12</sup>

The Government is developing a National Action Plan on Business and Human Rights based on the related Principles adopted in 2011 in consultation with a range of stakeholders.<sup>13</sup> However, no specific governmental efforts are currently focused on securing compliance with the 2012 Guiding Principles on Extreme Poverty and Human Rights.<sup>14</sup>

B. Human Rights Infrastructure

The Irish Human Rights Commission<sup>15</sup> and the Equality Authority<sup>16</sup> were merged in 2014 to become the Irish Human Rights and Equality Commission.<sup>17</sup> The relevant legislation provides for a public sector equality and human rights duty.<sup>19</sup>

C. Irish Constitution

A Convention on the Constitution was established by the Government in 2012. The Convention examined nine issues and made recommendations on how the Constitution should be amended.<sup>20</sup> To date only two issues have been put to referendum.<sup>21</sup> The Government committed to responding to recommendations within four months of receiving the Convention's report on respective issues. However, numerous responses remain outstanding.<sup>22</sup>

D. Scope of International Obligations

Ireland is party to six core international human rights treaties and operates a dualist legal system.<sup>23</sup> Therefore, ratification of international treaties does not give these automatic effect at domestic level. The majority of international human rights treaties that Ireland has ratified have not been incorporated into law.<sup>24</sup>

What happened at UPR 1?

21 recommendations were made at Ireland's first UPR regarding ratification of and reservations on international human rights treaties. 19 were accepted or partially accepted and 2 were rejected.<sup>25</sup> Updates were provided in the Government's interim report.<sup>26</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

The State has not ratified the following: UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities;<sup>27</sup> Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment;<sup>28</sup> International Convention for the Protection of All Persons from Enforced Disappearances;<sup>29</sup> Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution and Child Pornography;<sup>30</sup> Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights; UNESCO Convention against Discrimination in Education; International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of their Families.<sup>31</sup>

The State retains reservations under a number of international human rights treaties.<sup>32</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Incorporate human rights and equality impact assessments into the budgetary processes, recognising the State's minimum core obligations under international human rights law.

Ensure the State's budgetary policy is informed by human rights/equality standards and based on disaggregated data.

Integrate the framework of the Guiding Principles on Extreme Poverty and Human Rights in decision-making as part of a long term anti-poverty strategy.

Ensure that the IDCHR operates transparently and allows for meaningful engagement with civil society.

Immediately respond to outstanding recommendations from the Constitutional Convention and indicate which issues will be put to referendum and when.

01. Historical Abuse of Women & Children in Medical/Institutional Care

Background & Updates

Symphysiotomy and pubiotomy involve sundering the pelvis at either the symphysis joint (symphysiotomy) or the pubic bone (pubiotomy) to enable vaginal birth in obstructed labour. These surgeries occurred particularly in Catholic teaching hospitals in Ireland mainly between the 1940s and 1980s. These operations often led to life-altering side effects, ranging from chronic pain and incontinence to significant disability and mental suffering.

In 2014, the UN Human Rights Committee following its examination of Ireland's Fourth Periodic Report under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, expressed its concern regarding the practice of symphysiotomy and called for independent investigations and for the perpetrators to be brought to justice. (UN Human Rights Committee, Concluding observations on fourth periodic report of Ireland, CCPR/C/IRL/CO/4, para. 11).

The Magdalene Laundries were private, residential laundries operated by religious orders (The Sisters of Mercy, the Sisters of Our Lady of Charity, the Sisters of Charity, and the Good Shepherd Sisters), between 1922 and 1996. Over 10,000 girls and women were detained in the Laundries, forced to carry out unpaid labour and subjected to psychological and physical mistreatment. The last Magdalene Laundry ceased to operate as a commercial laundry in 1996.

In 2014, on foot of a report which examined state involvement in the Magdalene Laundries, the Government issued a formal apology to women and girls who had been confined to the Laundries and instituted a scheme of redress. However, a full, independent inquiry into the experience of women in Magdalene Laundries has not been undertaken.

What happened at UPR 1?

1 recommendation was accepted by Ireland at its first UPR.<sup>33</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Ireland published a review of symphysiotomy<sup>34</sup> in July 2014, the terms of reference of which excluded survivor testimony.<sup>35</sup> Despite calls from UN Committees, no independent inquiry has been held regarding the use of symphysiotomy in obstetric care.<sup>36</sup> A Government Redress Scheme<sup>37</sup> provides for limited compensation and requires extensive evidence to be provided to support claims of ill health and complications that arose as a direct consequence of the procedure.<sup>38</sup> The Scheme also requires women to waive all rights and entitlements and indemnify scheduled parties potentially liable<sup>39</sup> before compensation will be awarded. Lack of transparent procedures<sup>40</sup> have reportedly led to severe difficulties<sup>41</sup> for survivors in accessing redress.<sup>42</sup>

Similarly, a full, independent inquiry into the experience of women in Magdalene Laundries has not been undertaken.<sup>43</sup> Under the terms of the Magdalene Restorative Justice Scheme, qualifying survivors must waive any right of action against the State or any other body or agency arising out of her admission to or work in, a laundry, contrary to her constitutional rights.<sup>44</sup> The official report<sup>45</sup> on this matter has been criticised for its narrow remit and ignoring survivors' testimonies.

Following media reports from 2014 of mass graves at the sites of former Mother and Baby Homes, the Government established an independent Commission of Inquiry into the matter, which has full investigatory powers.<sup>46</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Implement full and independent inquiries into the practice of symphysiotomy and into the treatment of women in the Magdalene laundries, leading, where wrongdoing is identified, to prosecutions.

Adopt and implement a consistent approach, in line with international human rights law, to all inquiries into the historical abuse of women and children.

Abolish redress scheme waivers that prevent survivors from exercising their constitutional rights.

02. Freedom of Religion or Belief

Background & Updates

The offence of blasphemy is provided for under Irish law. Article 40.6.1 of the Irish Constitution states that: “[t]he publication or utterance of blasphemous, seditious, or indecent matter is an offence which shall be punishable in accordance with law.”

In 2013, the Government-established Constitutional Convention recommended that the offence of blasphemy in the Constitution be altered and replaced with a general provision to include incitement to hatred. In 2014, the UN Human Rights Committee following its examination of Ireland’s Fourth Periodic Report under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, reiterated the Convention’s recommendation. (UN Human Rights Committee, Concluding Observations on Fourth Periodic Report of Ireland, CCPR/C/IRL/CO/4, para. 22).

What happened at UPR 1?

7 recommendations were made, 6 were accepted or partially accepted and 1 was rejected. Updates were provided in the Government’s interim report.<sup>47</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendation 107.17, Article 40.6.1 of the Constitution<sup>48</sup> provides an exception to freedom of expression in the form of blasphemy.<sup>49</sup> The Constitutional Convention recommended that the offence be removed from the Constitution.<sup>50</sup> The Government committed to holding a referendum but has not done so.

Regarding recommendations 106.55 and 107.13, Articles 12.8, 31.4 and 34.5.1 of the Constitution require the President, Judges and the Council of State, including the Prime Minister and Deputy Prime Minister, to swear religious oaths when taking office.<sup>51</sup> Jurors, defendants and witnesses are asked to swear an oath on a religious text<sup>52</sup> in court proceedings.<sup>53</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Amend Article 40.6.1 of the Constitution to remove the offence of blasphemy from Irish law.

Replace the religious oaths in Articles 12.8, 31.4 and 34.5 of the Constitution and all oaths in court with neutral declarations.

03. Right to Education

Background & Updates

96 per cent of primary schools in Ireland have a religious patron and 89.9 per cent are under the patronage of the Catholic Church. Legislation, such as the Education Act 1998 and Equal Status Act 2000 permit denominational schools to actively discriminate against children in their enrolment policies to uphold the religious “ethos” of the state-funded schools. International bodies such as the UN Human Rights Committee, have expressed concern at the “slow progress in increasing access to secular education through the establishment of non-denominational schools, divestment of the patronage of schools and the phasing out of integrated religious curriculum in schools accommodating minority faith and non-faith children”. (UN Human Rights Committee, Concluding observations on Fourth Periodic Report of Ireland, CCPR/C/IRL/CO/4, para. 12).

What happened at UPR 1?

9 recommendations were made, 7 were accepted and 2 were rejected.<sup>54</sup> Updates were provided in the Government’s interim report.<sup>55</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendations 107.27, 107.47 and 107.48, a 2013 Government survey shows that 96 per cent of primary schools have a religious patron with 89.6 per cent under the patronage<sup>56</sup> of the Catholic Church.<sup>57</sup>

Section 15 of the Education Act, 1998<sup>58</sup> and Section 7(3)(c) of the Equal Status Act 2000<sup>59</sup> allow denominational schools to actively discriminate to uphold the religious “ethos” of state-funded schools.<sup>60</sup> Children of a particular faith may be prioritised for admission over children not of that denomination.<sup>61</sup>

Section 30 of the Education Act, 1998 allows parents to opt-out of religious education but supervision facilities do not provide an alternative curriculum.<sup>62</sup> Rules governing the teaching of the national curriculum at primary level make it difficult to opt-out of religious instruction, which must be integrated throughout the entire curriculum.<sup>63</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Amend Section 15 of the Education Act 1998, Section 7(3)(c) of the Equal Status Act 2000, and Section 37(1) of the Employment Equality Act 1998 to oblige publicly funded schools to deliver educational services, including employment, state curriculum and enrolment, in an objective and pluralistic manner.

Accelerate the divestment programme for primary and post-primary schools and ensure the widest possible availability of multi and non-denominational schools.

04. Rights of Persons with Disabilities

Background & Updates

The overarching concern with regard to the rights of persons with disabilities, is the State's failure to ratify the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UNCRPD) which protects a range of civil, political, economic, social and cultural rights as they relate to persons with disabilities.

The UNCRPD was signed by the State in 2007. The Government has noted that Ireland does not ratify human rights treaties until domestic law and policy are in line with the relevant treaty. This approach departs from the previous process when Ireland ratified other international human rights treaties and also fails to take into account the provision in Article 2 of the UNCRPD which allows for progressive realisation of certain rights, particularly economic, social and cultural rights, in the Convention.

The Government recently published a roadmap of legislative reforms deemed necessary to allow for ratification of the UN CRPD. A major concern with the roadmap is the Government's indication that it will enter a reservation to Article 27 in respect of reasonable accommodation.

“ The major human rights and equality issue for people with disabilities in Ireland is that our Government is dragging their feet in relation to ratifying the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. I think our Government needs to ratify this Convention as a matter of urgency. Maybe then when we have our rights then our services will fall into place. ”

Participant, UPR consultation

What happened at UPR 1?

7 recommendations were made and accepted or partially accepted.<sup>64</sup> Updates were provided in the Government's interim report.<sup>65</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

The Government has not ratified the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UNCRPD).<sup>66</sup> The Government has not fully implemented the Education for Persons with Special Educational Needs (EPSEN) Act 2004.<sup>67</sup>

In 2013, the Government abolished two key transport supports for people with disabilities with no replacements.<sup>68</sup> Two recent reports detailed a lack of access to justice for persons with disabilities including allegedly retaliatory actions taken by governmental bodies against parents attempting to access services for children.<sup>69</sup>

Some people with disabilities are excluded from job activation programmes and risk the loss of secondary benefits upon employment.<sup>70</sup> Despite a commitment in the 2011 Programme for Government to promote its recognition,<sup>71</sup> Irish Sign Language (ISL),<sup>72</sup> has not been officially recognised.<sup>73</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Publish a roadmap of legislative reforms and set a concrete timeline for UNCRPD ratification.<sup>74</sup>

Publish a plan for the full commencement of the EPSEN Act 2004, Disability Act 2005, and Citizens Information Act 2007.

Introduce a statutory transport subsidy scheme for people with disabilities.

Remove barriers to employment for people with disabilities.

Legislate to officially recognise Irish Sign Language.

05. Legal Protection of Economic, Social & Cultural (ESC) Rights

Background & Updates

The International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (ICESCR) protects rights such as adequate housing, access to healthcare, education, social security and the right to just and favourable conditions of work. Ireland ratified the ICESCR in 1989 but the majority of economic, social and cultural rights are not legally enforceable in Irish law. In 2014, the Government-established Constitutional Convention recommended that these rights should be given greater protection in the Constitution and that they should be enforceable before the courts. To date, the Government has failed to respond to the Convention's recommendation.

In 2015, the UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, following the examination of Ireland's Third Periodic Report under the ICESCR, reiterated its previously made recommendation that the ICESCR should be incorporated into domestic law. (UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, Concluding Observations on the Third Periodic Report of Ireland, E/C.12/IRL/CO.3, para. 7).

The Optional Protocol to the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (OP-ICESCR) creates a complaints mechanism allowing for people to make a complaint to the UN if they believe that their economic, social or cultural rights have been breached and if they have tried to access all possible remedies at a domestic level. The Government signed the OP-ICESCR in 2012 but has failed to take any steps towards ratification. This is so despite the fact that Ireland has signed up to similar complaints mechanism for all other UN human rights treaties it has ratified.

What happened at UPR 1?

6 recommendations on ESC rights were accepted or partially accepted.<sup>76</sup> The Government provided updates in its interim report.<sup>77</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendation 1074, Ireland signed the OP-ICESCR on 23 May 2012. No steps have been taken towards ratification. The Government in its interim report noted that a screening of obligations and consultations is necessary to progress towards ratification.<sup>78</sup>

ESC rights remain largely unenforceable in domestic law. The Government has not responded to the recommendation of the Constitutional Convention,<sup>79</sup> that the Constitutional protection of ESC rights be strengthened,<sup>80</sup> despite the Convention's terms of reference requiring a Government response within four months.<sup>81</sup>

Equality legislation<sup>82</sup> does not provide a full range of grounds of discrimination prohibited by ICESCR.<sup>83</sup>

06. Right to the Highest Attainable Standard of Health

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Withdraw the State's reservations under ICESCR and ratify OP-ICESCR.

Respond to the recommendation of the Constitutional Convention on ESC rights.

Bring Ireland's equality legislation in line with Article 2(2) ICESCR by widening the grounds upon which discrimination is prohibited, including socio-economic status.

Background & Updates

A two-tier health system operates within the State which has caused concerns around equality of access to healthcare services based on need rather than ability to pay. Those on low incomes often face long waiting times to access services while those who can afford private health insurance receive faster treatment, often in publicly funded hospitals treating both public and privately insured patients.

The Government committed to introducing universal healthcare for the whole population. Free GP care has been introduced for certain cohorts of the population (children under 6 and persons 70 and over). In Budget 2016, the Government announced plans to extend this to children under 12. However, it is unclear how and when universal healthcare will be rolled out on a nationwide basis.

In 2015, the UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, following the examination of Ireland's Third Periodic Report under the ICESCR recommended that the State introduce "a common waiting list for treatment in publicly funded hospitals for privately and publicly insured patients" and to expedite "the introduction of a universal health-services system and community-based health services".

The Committee also expressed its concern "at the overall deterioration in health-care services due to significant budget cuts in public health in recent years and at the negative impact on access for disadvantaged and marginalized individuals and groups to adequate health care" in particular the "[w]idening disparity between people with and those without private health insurance in accessing medical services".

(UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, Concluding Observations on the Third Periodic Report of Ireland, E/C.12/IRL/CO.3, para. 28).

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendation 106.56, there have been significant budget cuts in recent years to community and national healthcare services including the community sector and critical posts being left vacant.<sup>84</sup>

There are challenges in providing timely access to acute hospitals as demand exceeds capacity.<sup>85</sup>

Regarding recommendation 106.57, CESCR most recently expressed concern on widening disparities between people with and those without private health insurance in accessing medical services.<sup>86</sup>

Registration for free General Practitioner (GP) care for children under 6 years began in 2015.<sup>87</sup> A means-tested GP visit card<sup>88</sup> for the over 70s has also been introduced. Despite commitments made, the Government has not provided a clear plan on how it will introduce universal healthcare<sup>89</sup> for the remainder of the population.<sup>90</sup>

HIV and AIDS related stigma and discrimination in Ireland remains a problem.<sup>91</sup> The new National Sexual Health Strategy has yet to be published<sup>92</sup> and should contain a strong focus on HIV/AIDS prevention.

Concern has been raised that the existing focus of service provision in relation to addiction is overly focused on the use of opiate-based substances

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Provide a concrete plan and timeline for the roll out of universal healthcare.

Introduce targeted measures to combat overcrowding and waiting times in access to healthcare.

Whilst transitioning to universal healthcare, introduce a common waiting list for treatment in publicly funded hospitals for private and public patients.

Publish the National Sexual Health Strategy with appropriate focus on prevention of HIV/AIDS.

Efforts targeting opiate, non-opiate and poly-substance use should be introduced.

07. Right to Adequate Housing

Background & Updates

Article 43 of the Irish Constitution protects the right to private property subject to the requirements to the common good but there is no correlating provision protecting the right to adequate housing.

The economic crisis and imposition of austerity measures have resulted in increasing numbers of homelessness. There are gaps between the availability and the demand for social housing with long waiting lists. Social support programmes such as Rent Supplements and the Housing Assistance payment do not reflect increasing rental prices. Both the lack of social housing and inadequate rent supplement levels are resulting in increasing levels of family homelessness. The cost of private rented accommodation continues to increase as demand exceeds supply.

In 2015, the UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, following the examination of Ireland's Third Periodic Report under the ICESCR, made recommendations to the State relating to the current housing crisis. This included but was not limited to increasing “the number of social housing units so as to satisfy the high demand and to reduce long waiting lists”; considering the introduction of “legislation on private rent and increasing rent supplement levels”; and to “take all the measures necessary to meet the critical needs of those who are homeless or who are at risk of being homeless”.

(UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, Concluding Observations on the Third Periodic Report of Ireland, E/C.12/IRL/CO.3, para. 27).

Information submitted for UPR 2

There has been a major increase in family homelessness.<sup>94</sup> There is not enough State emergency accommodation.<sup>95</sup> The Government's decision<sup>96</sup> to maintain Rent Supplement<sup>97</sup> at 2013 levels, in spite of increasing pressure on private rents, is leading to insecurity of tenure and risk of homelessness.<sup>98</sup> Many landlords do not accept Rent Supplement.<sup>99</sup> Under the new Housing Assistance Payment (HAP) housing is provided through the private rental sector.<sup>100</sup> There is a lack of social housing due to the State's reduction in the social housing<sup>101</sup> budget over successive years. Demand on the private rented sector continues to increase,<sup>103</sup> resulting in increasing rental prices.<sup>104</sup>

The procedure for eviction of local authority tenants changed in 2015.<sup>105</sup> The final arbiter of the decision to evict is now the District Court,<sup>106</sup> which can consider the reasonableness of the decision to evict.<sup>107</sup> However, there is no State legal aid available for such cases.<sup>108</sup> The Private Residential Tenancies Board (PRTB) which deals with disputes between tenants and private landlords<sup>109</sup> does not apply to social housing tenancies.<sup>110</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Prioritise the family homelessness crisis with a view to introducing immediate relief and long-term solutions.

Increase and fast-track the provision of social housing.

Expand the State legal aid scheme to include cases involving eviction from social housing.

Extend the remit of the PRTB to local authority tenancies, including social housing eligibility, repairs/maintenance, rent and rent arrears.

Introduce legislative and policy measures to ensure rent supplement/HAP can meet market rent.

08. Right to Work

Background & Updates

The Industrial Relations (Amendment) Act 2015 was commenced on the 1st August 2015. It provides for the reintroduction of a mechanism for registering employment agreements between an employer or employers and trade unions governing conditions of employment and remuneration in individual enterprises. The Act creates a new statutory framework for the Labour Court to examine and establish minimum rates of remuneration and conditions of employment. The Act also reforms the current law on collective bargaining and the power of the Labour Court to make orders regarding the terms of employment against employers who do not have collective bargaining arrangements.

Information submitted for UPR 2

The commencement<sup>111</sup> of the Industrial Relations (Amendment) Act 2015<sup>112</sup> is welcome. However, there is a lack of protection of the right to Freedom of Association, to Organise and Collective Bargaining for freelance/atypical workers.

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Adequately protect the right of freelance/atypical workers to collective bargaining.

09. Gender Equality

Background & Updates

Both the UN Human Rights Committee and the UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights have recently expressed their concern at the slow progress in modifying the language of Article 41.2 of the Irish Constitution on the role of women in the home.

(UN Human Rights Committee, Concluding Observations on Fourth Periodic Report of Ireland, CCPR/C/IRL/CO/4, para. 7). (UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, Concluding Observations on the Third Periodic Report of Ireland, E/C.12/IRL/CO.3, para. 22).

Article 41.2 states that “[i]n particular the State recognises that by her life within the home, woman gives to the State a support without which the common good cannot be achieved. The State shall, therefore, endeavour to ensure that mothers shall not be obliged by economic necessity to engage in labour to the neglect of their duties in the home.”

In 2013, the Government-established Constitutional Convention recommended that the ‘woman in the home’ clause should be replaced with a gender neutral clause on care in Irish society. The Convention also made further recommendations on the modification of the electoral system and changes to political education in schools to enhance the participation of women in public life. The Government accepted the recommendation in relation to amending Article 41.2 of the Constitution. However, it noted that the “inclusion of a reference by the Convention to the issue of ‘carers’ did not make it possible to provide specific timeframe for a Referendum” and that extensive consultations would be necessary. A taskforce to review the proposal to include language relating to the issue was established.

The National Women's Strategy 2007-2016 was developed as a national policy to implement the Beijing Platform of Action which arose out of the Fourth World Conference for Women. Concerns have been expressed at the lack of progress on certain objectives of the Strategy such as the reduction in the gender pay gap. Furthermore, the Strategy and implementation thereof have to date not been independently evaluated and despite its expiry in 2016 no public consultations have taken place to date to inform a new strategy.

What happened at UPR 1?

6 recommendations on ESC rights were accepted<sup>113</sup> or partially accepted. The Government provided updates in its interim report.<sup>114</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendation 106.59, no concrete actions have been taken to increase the number of women on corporate boards.<sup>115</sup> A primary objective of the National Women's Strategy 2007-2016 was to address the gender pay gap; however, margins have increased.<sup>116</sup> The Strategy has failed to operate in effective, practical terms, has yet to be reviewed independently and despite its expiry in 2016, civil society groups have not been consulted on a new strategy.<sup>117</sup>

Ireland has repeatedly failed to submit reports to CEDAW on time and its combined 6th and 7th Periodic Reports are outstanding since 2007.<sup>118</sup>

10. Violence against Women

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Ensure an independent review of the National Women's Strategy and devise a consultative process on its successor.

Prioritise the submission of Ireland's combined 6th and 7th Periodic Reports to CEDAW.

Set timeframes within which gender balance on corporate boards must be progressed and steps taken to reduce the gender pay gap.

Background & Updates

The Council of Europe Convention on Preventing and Combating Violence against Women and Domestic Violence is a landmark treaty of the Council of Europe which opens the way for creating a legal framework at a pan-European level to protect women from all forms of violence, and to prevent, prosecute and eliminate violence against women and domestic violence. The Convention also creates a specific monitoring mechanism to ensure effective implementation of the Convention by countries which are a party to it.

Since the Your Rights. Right Now coalition submitted to the UN, Ireland signed the Convention (on 5 November 2015). This is a welcome development. However, ratification is still outstanding.

On the issue of violence against women in Ireland, following its review of Ireland's Fourth Periodic Report under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the UN Human Rights Committee expressed its concern "that domestic and sexual violence against women remains a serious problem in the State party" and at the "lack of a comprehensive data collection system on violence against women and at the existence of administrative and financial obstacles for marginalised women to access essential services". The UN Committee on the Economic, Social and Cultural Rights also made similar observations in its examination of Ireland's Third Periodic Report in 2015.

(UN Human Rights Committee, Concluding Observations on Fourth Periodic Report of Ireland, CCPR/C/IRL/CO/4, para. 8). (UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, Concluding Observations on the Third Periodic Report of Ireland, E/C.12/IRL/CO.3, para. 22).

What happened at UPR 1?

9 recommendations were accepted.<sup>119</sup> Updates were provided by the Government in its interim report.<sup>120</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Ireland had not signed the Council of Europe Convention on Preventing and Combating Violence against Women and Domestic Violence (Istanbul Convention).<sup>121</sup> Ireland previously stated that "administrative and legislative" arrangements required to enable signature were being examined.<sup>122</sup> Eligibility for safety orders should be extended to parties involved in intimate relationships regardless of whether they cohabit<sup>123</sup> and specific offences of stalking and cyber-harassment should be enacted.

There is insufficient data on the nature and extent of domestic violence in Ireland to develop evidence-based policies, plan service provision and identify gaps or discrimination in services.<sup>124</sup> There has been no comprehensive audit of sexual abuse and violence since 2002.<sup>125</sup> Although demand for relevant services grew,<sup>126</sup> cuts have continued since the introduction of austerity measures in 2008 so that many women are on waiting lists for support services and cannot be accommodated in refuges.<sup>127</sup>

The Habitual Residence Condition (HRC)<sup>128</sup> which must be satisfied when applying for social protection, can be a barrier for women experiencing violence in accessing social protection entitlements.<sup>129</sup> Migrants experiencing domestic violence face difficulties in applying for independent residence permits.<sup>130</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Sign and ratify the Istanbul Convention.

Ensure consistent, independent, data collection on domestic and sexual violence.

Make legislative provision to allow migrants who experience domestic violence to apply for independent residence permits.

Adequately fund domestic and sexual violence support and advocacy services.

11. LGBTI Rights

Background & Updates

In 2015, Ireland became the first country in the world to permit marriage for same-sex couples by popular referendum. On 23 May 2015, 62% of voters approved a change to the constitution to permit marriage equality. On 16 November 2015, the result of the referendum became law under the Marriage Act 2015.

A law providing for the recognition of gender of Trans persons based on a self-declaration model was adopted in July 2015. The law represents a significant and progressive step forward in the recognition of rights for Trans people in Ireland.

Notwithstanding the passage of the referendum, a significant number of challenges for LGBTI people remain including exemptions for certain employers from equality and anti-discrimination provisions in Irish law, including in relation to sexual orientation, in order to protect the religious ethos of an institution. Other challenges include discrimination in accessing goods and services and under reporting and low prosecution rates of hate crime. Legislative reform of Section 37(1) of the Employment Equality Act 1998 took place in December 2015.

What happened at UPR 1?

2 recommendations on LGBTI rights were made and accepted or partially accepted by Ireland in 2011.<sup>131</sup> The Government provided updates in its interim report.<sup>132</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendation 10744, an historic referendum to amend Article 41 of the Constitution to provide for Marriage Equality was passed on 22 May 2015.<sup>133</sup> Enactment of legislation providing equal rights for same-sex couples in relation to parenting of children is strongly welcomed.<sup>134</sup> However, proposed legislation to provide a legal framework to govern the practice of surrogacy for all couples was deferred.<sup>135</sup>

The enactment of the Gender Recognition Act 2015 is strongly welcomed. This legislation allows for self-certification by transgender people of their preferred identity. However, the Act provides a limited pathway to legal recognition of 16 and 17 year olds.<sup>136</sup> Trans people under 16 are not eligible to apply. ‘Gender identity’ and ‘gender expression’ are not currently listed as grounds protected under existing equality legislation.<sup>137</sup>

There is a lack of access to regional healthcare services for those wishing to transition.

Regarding recommendation 10745, Section 37(1) of the Employment Equality Act 1998 permits employers to ‘take action’ against an employee/prospective employee to uphold the religious “ethos” of an institution including on grounds other than religion. The progression of the Equality (Miscellaneous Provisions) Bill 2013 to address Section 37(1) is welcomed.

No provision exists to allow LGBTI public servants who retired prior to the introduction of civil partnership/marriage equality, having previously chosen not to nominate an opposite sex beneficiary for their pension,<sup>140</sup> to nominate now a same sex partner for the relevant pension entitlement.<sup>141</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Introduce legislation to regulate surrogacy and ensure legal provisions apply equally to same-sex and opposite-sex couples.

Prioritise measures to address the discriminatory impact of Section 37(1) of the Employment Equality Act 1998.

Extend protections against discrimination on the grounds of ‘gender identity’ and/or ‘gender expression’ in all equality policy and legislation.

Ensure that Trans people have access to regional healthcare services and quality, timely specialist support services, including mental health services.

Amend the Gender Recognition Act 2015 so that Trans and intersex young people can avail of legal recognition that is quick, transparent and accessible.

Enact legislation to ensure LGBTI persons are no longer discriminated against in relation to pension provision.

12. Mental Health

Background & Updates

A Vision for Change is the national policy for reforming Ireland’s mental health services. It was published in 2006 and it proposes significant changes to the way people think about mental health and the way mental health services are delivered in Ireland. Proposed legislation, the Assisted Decision-Making (Capacity) Bill 2013 will, when passed, require service providers to adhere to the principles of the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UN CRPD) including for both voluntary and involuntary patients detained in psychiatric facilities. It is anticipated that this legislation will be enacted by the end of 2015.

In October 2015, the Government published the Roadmap to Ratification on the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UN CRPD) which included plans to reform existing mental health legislation to ensure that persons are not deprived of their liberty unlawfully or arbitrarily, and that any deprivation of liberty is in conformity with the law.

A major concern with the roadmap is the Government’s indication that it will enter a reservation to Article 27 in respect of reasonable accommodation.

“ When you go into a service, a service should be about options and when it comes to mental health in Ireland there are very few individualised options that people will get. ”

– Participant, UPR consultation

The UNCRPD was signed by the State in 2007. The Government has noted that Ireland does not ratify human rights treaties until domestic law and policy are in line with the relevant treaty. This approach departs from the previous process when Ireland ratified other international human rights treaties and also fails to take into account the provision in Article 2 of the UNCRPD which allows for progressive realisation of certain rights, particularly economic, social and cultural rights, in the Convention.

What happened at UPR 1?

5 recommendations were accepted or partially accepted.<sup>142</sup> The Government provided updates in its interim report.<sup>143</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendation 10716, the Assisted Decision-Making (Capacity) Bill 2013 has not yet been enacted.<sup>144</sup> The Government has not amended the Mental Health Act 2001 to comply with the UNCRPD.<sup>145</sup>

The 2013 Capacity Bill<sup>146</sup> does not respect the right to legal capacity in accordance with the UNCRPD.<sup>147</sup>

The Mental Health Act 2001 allows involuntary treatment and detention.<sup>148</sup> Mental health services continue to use coercive and restrictive practices like non-consensual psychiatric medication and electroshock.<sup>149</sup>

Non-medication centred treatment and community housing choices are lacking for people experiencing mental health difficulties. Tailored services are not available for minority groups.<sup>150</sup> Staff are not appropriately trained in community care.<sup>151</sup> Ireland’s Mental Health Strategy has not been adequately resourced or fully implemented.<sup>152</sup>

13. Rights of Older People

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Enact the Assisted Decision-Making (Capacity) Bill 2013 and ensure that it and the Mental Health Act 2001 comply with the UNCPRD.

Strictly regulate non-consensual treatment.

Train relevant healthcare staff on community-based care models and alternatives to non-consensual treatment and adopt holistic approaches for treatment options.

Involve persons concerned in decisions around community-based living.

Fully implement and update Ireland's Mental Health Strategy including recommendations around social inclusion.

Background & Updates

Census figures (2011) indicate that the number of older people (aged 65 and over) in Ireland has exceeded 500,000 for the first time, a 14.4 per cent increase since the previous census. In 2013, the Department of Health and Children published the National Positive Ageing Strategy. The Strategy aims to “act as a catalyst for action and innovation to promote the health, wellbeing and quality of life of people as they age in Ireland by focusing attention on issues relevant to older people across the policy development and service delivery process.” The operating principles underpinning the Strategy are derived from the UN Principles for Older Persons which are independence, participation, care, self-fulfilment and dignity.

A commitment to publish and implement the strategy was made in the current Programme for Government (2011-2016). Repeated concerns have been raised at the continued failure of the Government to provide details, including a timeframe, for the full implementation of the strategy. (UN Human Rights Committee, Concluding Observations on Fourth Periodic Report of Ireland, CCPR/C/IRL/CO/4, para. 8). (UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, Concluding Observations on the Third Periodic Report of Ireland, E/C.12/IRL/CO.3, para. 22).

“We saved for our security.”

“Every month I have to draw out of my savings.”

“Increases in costs and the introduction of new charges are doing away with our freedoms more and more.”

Age Action (2014) Growing Older in Ireland – the impact of austerity on older people's experience of poverty

What happened at UPR 1?

2 recommendations were made and accepted or partially accepted.<sup>153</sup> The Government provided updates in its interim report.<sup>154</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendation 106.35, reductions in secondary income supports; rising prices; and introduction of new taxes and charges have had a cumulative impact on older people.<sup>155</sup>

Despite an increase to the Living Alone Allowance in Budget 2015, lone pensioners face financial hardship.<sup>156</sup> There has been a reduction in the income threshold for medical cards for those aged over 70.<sup>157</sup> Since the introduction of prescription charges, fees rose from €0.50 to €2.50.<sup>158</sup>

Cuts to funding for the Nursing Home Support Scheme in 2015 led to significant increases in waiting lists and times.<sup>159</sup>

14. Reproductive Rights

Background & Updates

Ireland continues to have one of the most restrictive regimes in the world in relation to accessing safe and legal abortion services for women and girls. Ireland rejected a number of recommendations following its first UPR in 2011 which called on the State to introduce legislation providing access to safe and legal abortions in Ireland. The Protection of Life During Pregnancy Act 2013 implemented the European Court of Human Rights judgment in A, B and C v Ireland to permit access to abortion where a woman's life is at risk including by suicide.

In its Concluding Observations on Ireland's Fourth Periodic Examination under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR) in 2014, the UN Human Rights Committee called on Ireland to reform its Constitution to allow greater access to abortion services. Existing legislation is viewed by the Committee as overly restrictive and does not provide access to safe and legal abortion in cases of rape, incest, where there is a risk to a woman's health or in cases of fatal foetal anomaly. Procuring or assisting with an abortion in Ireland remains a criminal offence.

There is a lack of statutory provision for financial support for the delivery of aged care in the community.<sup>160</sup> Despite an increase in the number of people aged 85 and over,<sup>161</sup> home help hours have not increased from 2012 levels.<sup>162</sup> The number of recipients has also fallen.

The Government has failed to introduce an implementation plan for the National Positive Ageing Strategy published in 2013.<sup>164</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Introduce an implementation plan for the National Positive Ageing Strategy.

Examine the impact of austerity measures on older people with a view to ensuring support services are sufficiently resourced.

Introduce targeted measures to combat waiting times under the Nursing Home Support Strategy.

Ensure that funding and allocation of home help hours matches the growing ageing population and demand for such service.

Develop a care system which enables older people to have a choice around their long term care needs.

What happened at UPR 1?

6 recommendations were made and all were rejected.<sup>165</sup> Updates were provided by the Government in its interim report.<sup>166</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendation 108.4, Article 40.3.3 of the Constitution equates the existence of a foetus with the right to life of a pregnant woman.<sup>167</sup> Abortion is unlawful in Ireland except to save a woman's life;<sup>168</sup> women in all other circumstances must travel abroad for abortion services.<sup>169</sup> The provision of information regarding abortion is strictly regulated and criminalised in certain circumstances by the Abortion Information Act 1995. In cases of conflict with foetal existence, doctors are prevented from making clinical decisions in the best interests of safeguarding a woman's health or dignity.<sup>170</sup> A number of cases of harm to women, including avoidable deaths, arising from Ireland's abortion laws have occurred since 2011.<sup>171</sup> UN Treaty Bodies have criticised the non-compliance of Ireland's abortion laws including its Constitution with international human rights standards.<sup>172</sup>

Regarding recommendations 108.5, 108.6, 108.7 and 109.9, the Protection of Life During Pregnancy Act (PLDPA) was enacted in 2013.<sup>173</sup> There are concerns over the failure to provide adequate services, and cumbersome and discriminatory procedures under<sup>174</sup> the Act.<sup>175</sup>

Regarding recommendation 108.8, while the provisions of the 1861 Act that criminalised abortion<sup>176</sup> have been repealed, the PLDPA re-criminalises abortion, imposing a maximum penalty of 14 years imprisonment.<sup>177</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Repeal Article 40.3.3 of the Irish Constitution.

Decriminalise abortion by repealing sections 22 and 23 of the PLDPA 2013.

Repeal the Abortion Information Act 1995.

Provide a human rights compliant framework for abortion, in law and in practice.

15. Rights of the Child

Background & Updates

In 2012, the Thirty-first Amendment of the Constitution was passed by popular referendum to specifically enshrine and enhance the rights of the children in the Irish Constitution. Following a number of unsuccessful legal challenges, legislation giving effect to the referendum was finally signed into law in April 2015.

New legislation providing extensive reform of family law in the area of parental and child rights was also enacted in April 2015. The Children and Family Relationships Act 2015 institutes significant reforms in the areas of custody, access, guardianship and adoption of children, including in relation to families headed by same-sex couples and children in non-marital families.

Notwithstanding the passage of these two historic pieces of legislation, a significant number of challenges remain which adversely affect the quality of life of children in Ireland, including timely access to services, inadequate child protection measures, barriers to accessing education including secular or non-denominational education and inadequate access to childcare services. A welcome development since the Your Rights. Right Now coalition made its submission to the UN, is the decision by the Minister for Children and Youth Affairs to introduce an amendment to the Children First Bill 2014, to remove the common law defence of ‘reasonable chastisement’ in Ireland.

What happened at UPR 1?

12 recommendations were made and accepted or partially accepted. The Government provided updates in its interim report.<sup>179</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendations 106.9 and 107.9, a constitutional amendment on children was passed by referendum in 2012.<sup>180</sup> Legislation is required to ensure compliance with Article 42A of the Constitution.<sup>181</sup>

The Second Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of the Child<sup>182</sup> has not been ratified despite the Government indicating at its first UPR that legislation was “at an advanced stage of preparation”.<sup>183</sup>

Regarding recommendations 107.41 and 107.42, at the time of submission the defence of ‘reasonable chastisement’ still exists in common law. Corporal punishment is permissible at home and by childminders in certain settings.<sup>184</sup>

Childcare in Ireland is among the most expensive in the world.<sup>185</sup> Evidence from centre based services<sup>186</sup> suggests varying quality of provision.<sup>187</sup> There is no comprehensive public funding of childcare or afterschool care<sup>188</sup> and limited support for low-income families.<sup>189</sup>

Unacceptable delays exist in responding to child abuse referrals.<sup>190</sup> Proposed legislation places a duty on organisations providing relevant services to children to carry out risk assessments and prepare an organisation-specific Child Safeguarding Statement<sup>191</sup> but does not provide for robust sanction for failure to comply.<sup>192</sup>

There are delays in interviewing child victims and child witnesses of sexual or physical abuse or serious neglect.<sup>193</sup> Inadequacies exist within the court services in dealing with child victims.<sup>194</sup> Delays are experienced in access to counselling and support services.<sup>195</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Fully incorporate the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child into domestic law.

Enact legislation to fully implement Article 42A of the Constitution.

Ratify the Second Optional Protocol to the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child.

Ban corporal punishment in all settings.

Increase investment in early childhood care and education to the current OECD average of 0.8 per cent GDP at a minimum.

Legislate for the mandatory provision of confidential victim support services free of charge before, during and, for an appropriate time, after criminal proceedings, in line with Article 8 of the EU Victims’ Directive.

16. Traveller & Roma Rights

Background & Updates

Travellers remain one of the most marginalised and excluded minority groups in Irish society. In October 2015, the tragic death of 10 Traveller parents and children at a temporary accommodation site and the subsequent difficulties for the municipal authorities in securing an additional site in the locality to re-accommodate survivors served to highlight deep inequality, mistrust and significant barriers to accessing services that persist for Travellers in Ireland.

Despite promises of action, and numerous recommendations from international Treaty Monitoring Bodies, the Government has repeatedly failed to recognise Travellers as an ethnic group. Following criticism of Ireland from the European Commission on foot of the EU Framework for National Roma Integration Strategies up to 2020, the Government has sought to revise the National Traveller and Roma Integration Strategy in partnership with Traveller representatives.

Members of the Roma community, (estimated between 5,000 and 10,000) also report experiencing deep levels of inequality and discrimination. In 2014, a report by the Ombudsman for Children note a culture of institutional racism towards Roma existed in An Garda Síochána (Irish police) following the removal of two Roma children from their families on foot of unfounded child protection concerns.

“One of the main issues we have is around the lack of progress around having Traveller ethnicity recognised and impacts that has on service provision in terms of identification of need in respect of things like housing and healthcare.”

Participant, UPR consultation

What happened at UPR 1?

7 recommendations were made, 6 were accepted and one was rejected.<sup>196</sup> The Government provided updates in its interim report.<sup>197</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Despite repeated recommendations from international treaty monitoring bodies<sup>198</sup> the Government has failed to recognise Travellers as an ethnic group.<sup>199</sup>

Travellers and Roma experience poorer outcomes regarding health, education, employment and discrimination, leading to deprivation and exclusion.<sup>200</sup> The lack of overall prioritisation of Travellers and Roma since 2011 was exemplified in Ireland’s National Traveller/Roma Integration Strategy (NTRIS) document submitted to the European Commission in 2012. The strategy contains no goals, targets, indicators or related timeframes, funding mechanisms or monitoring and evaluation mechanisms.<sup>201</sup> Roma are largely excluded from this document which has not been changed since 2011.<sup>203</sup> In 2015 the Government committed to working in partnership with Traveller organisations to revise the strategy.<sup>204</sup>

Under the Housing (Traveller Accommodation) Act 1998, municipal authorities must provide adequate accommodation for Travellers in their region including a number of serviced transient sites. Local authorities continue to fail to meet accommodation targets and existing accommodation often lacks basic services and utilities.<sup>205</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Recognise Travellers as a distinct ethnic group without further delay.

Develop and implement a progressive National Traveller and Roma Integration Strategy, in line with human rights commitments.

Establish concrete measures to combat discrimination and ensure equal access and improved outcomes for Travellers and Roma in relation to education, employment, health, and participation.

Introduce legally binding targets for municipal authorities so that adequate accommodation for Travellers is provided

17. International Assistance & Cooperation

Background & Updates

At the March 2002 International Conference on Financing for Development in Monterrey, Mexico, Ireland recommitted to a contribution of 0.7% of Gross National Product (GNP) to Official Development Assistance (ODA). The UN Millennium Project’s analysis indicates that 0.7% of rich world GNP can provide enough resources to meet the Millennium Development Goals, but developed countries must follow through on commitments and begin increasing ODA volumes. In the current Programme for Government (2011-2016) Ireland committed to reaching the target spending by 2015. Ireland has so far failed to meet this target.

What happened at UPR 1?

1 recommendation was made and accepted by Ireland during its first UPR.<sup>206</sup> The Government provided updates in its interim report.<sup>207</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Spending to achieve the 0.7% Official Development Assistance (ODA)/Gross National Income (GNI) target peaked at 0.59% of GDP in 2008 and has fallen since.<sup>208</sup>

Standards of transparency, public participation and accountability are lacking when it comes to tax policies in Ireland. There are concerns about the spill-over effect of Ireland’s tax policies on developing countries.<sup>209</sup> The State does not systematically conduct impact assessments of the implications of its international tax policies.<sup>210</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Make an explicit commitment to meet the UN target of 0.7% ODA/GNI by 2020.

Establish greater coherence across government departments to ensure fiscal policies do not promote inequitable growth, contribute to further marginalisation of people and inequality between men and women in Ireland and internationally.

Ensure Irish companies and individuals are adhering to international law including human rights standards and international best practice standards for business.

Introduce periodic independent, participatory impact assessments of any major changes to the Irish tax code for potential spill-over effects on developing countries.

18. Immigration & Asylum/Domestic Workers

Background & Updates

The increase in the number of refugees and asylum seekers in the European Union, particularly in relation to people fleeing from conflict, brings into sharp focus the need to update existing Irish laws on international protection. The Government has published the International Protection Bill 2013, which is intended to introduce a single procedure mechanism for the determination of international protection applications in Ireland. The Bill is expected to be enacted before the end of 2015.

Despite commitments, there has been no legislative reform in the broader area of general immigration and residence procedures. The Irish immigration system remains based on Ministerial discretion and there is no system of independent appeals in either immigration or naturalisation (citizenship) applications. The National Action Plan to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking expired in 2012 and has not been replaced.

What happened at UPR 1?

20 recommendations were made, 9 were accepted, 4 partially accepted and 7 were rejected. Updates were provided by the Government in its interim report.<sup>212</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendations 106.17, 106.60, 106.61 and 107.11, the General Scheme of the International Protection Bill<sup>213</sup> proposes to introduce a single procedure mechanism for determining international protection applications.<sup>214</sup> Family reunification entitlements<sup>215</sup> and ‘leave to remain’ procedures are inadequate. No stateless determination is provided for.<sup>216</sup> Provisions on the rights of the child require strengthening.<sup>217</sup> The issue of Direct Provision is not addressed and there remains no independent complaints mechanism.<sup>219</sup>

In June 2015, the Report of the Direct Provision Working Group<sup>220</sup> was published.<sup>221</sup> Serious concerns remain at the poor living conditions and the lengthy stays of asylum seekers in direct provision centres.<sup>222</sup>

Aside from international protection measures, the comprehensive immigration reform envisaged by the Immigration, Residence and Protection Bill, 2010<sup>223</sup> has not progressed, nor has the European Communities (Free Movement of Persons) (No. 2) Regulations 2006 been amended.<sup>224</sup> A regularisation scheme for undocumented migrants<sup>225</sup> is under consideration but it is unclear what progress has been made.<sup>226</sup>

Ireland ratified the ILO Domestic Workers Convention, 2011 (No. 189) in 2015.<sup>227</sup> However, many domestic workers still face severe exploitation.<sup>228</sup>

The draft National Action Plan to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking<sup>229</sup> does not refer to plans to develop policy or law regarding protection of victims of human trafficking.<sup>230</sup> Policy and/or legislation for the identification and protection of such victims is required.<sup>231</sup>

No independent training or testing of interpreters currently exists. Lack of consistency in interpretation standards has a negative impact on vulnerable groups such as asylum seekers.<sup>232</sup>

Regarding Ireland’s response to the crisis in the Mediterranean,<sup>233</sup> detail is required on the Government’s proposals regarding processing procedures and reception conditions for asylum seekers and refugees, and future challenges, including family reunification.<sup>234</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Amend the General Scheme of the International Protection Bill to address family reunification, best interests of the child and the legal framework for reception conditions.

Pending abolition, significantly reform the direct provision system, and extend the remit of the Ombudsman for Children to include oversight of the direct provision system or alternative accommodation arranged by the Reception and Integration Agency.

Undertake comprehensive immigration legislative reform, including giving greater protection to undocumented migrants, and amend the European Communities (Free Movement of Persons) (No. 2) Regulations 2006.

Fully implement the ILO Domestic Workers Convention.

Publish a National Action Plan to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking.

Develop a comprehensive victim identification and protection procedure with the involvement of civil society for the early identification of victims of trafficking.

Ensure independent training and testing of interpreters.

19. Hate Crime & Discrimination

Background & Updates

Ireland’s only legislative provision to combat any form of hate crime is the largely ineffective Prohibition to Incitement to Hatred Act 1989. In July 2015, the Minister for Justice and Equality indicated that she would be open to reviewing the effectiveness of the Prohibition on Incitement to Hatred Act 1989. No indication was provided in relation to if and when such a review would take place.

Despite recommendations made during Ireland’s first UPR, no legislative provisions currently exist in Irish law to ensure that bias as a motivating factor in relation to the commission of a criminal offence (i.e. a hate crime) is taken into account when sentencing beyond the discretion of the judiciary. In its fourth monitoring cycle on Ireland the European Commission on Racism and Intolerance (ECRI) strongly encouraged the Irish authorities to improve and to supplement the existing arrangements for the collecting data on racist incidents.

What happened at UPR 1?

25 recommendations were made; 20 were partially or fully accepted and 5 rejected.<sup>235</sup> Interim updates were provided by the Government.<sup>236</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Contrary to recommendations 107.25 and 107.26, Ireland has not produced a successor to the 2005-2008 National Action Plan against Racism.<sup>237</sup>

Despite accepting multiple recommendations,<sup>238</sup> the State has failed to reform the Prohibition of Incitement to Hatred Act 1989.<sup>239</sup>

In 2014/2015, empirical research,<sup>240</sup> and media coverage of individual cases of victimisation (particularly on the grounds of race and disability),<sup>241</sup> evidenced that current provisions are inadequate to address the problem of hate crime in Ireland.

Contrary to recommendation 107.29 concrete measures to promote reporting and recording of hate crime have not been implemented.<sup>242</sup> Low rates of investigation are evident. If prosecuted, the hate element often does not reach the courts.<sup>244</sup>

Heads of Bill, addressing hate crime were prepared by independent researchers in 2015 in response to a Ministerial request.<sup>245</sup>

20. Prisons/Detention

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Legislate to introduce aggravated offences and enhanced sentencing where evidence of bias as a motivating or demonstrable factor exists.

Monitor the implementation of hate crime laws from inception, focusing in particular on training, reporting, recording, investigation, prosecution and sentencing.

Mainstream a victim orientation throughout the criminal justice system.

Background & Updates

Under the Optional Protocol to the UN Convention against Torture (OP CAT), each country must designate or establish an independent National Preventive Mechanism for the prevention of torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment at a domestic level.

Ireland signed the OP CAT in 2007 but has not yet ratified it.

In 2014, the UN Human Rights Committee, following its examination of Ireland's Fourth Periodic Report under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, expressed its concern "at the lack of progress in eliminating adverse conditions in a number of prisons in the State party, such as: (a) overcrowding; (b) lack of in-cell sanitation facilities; (c) lack of segregation of remand and convicted prisoners, and between detained immigrants and sentenced prisoners; and (d) the high level of inter-prisoner violence."

(UN Human Rights Committee, Concluding Observations on Fourth Periodic Report of Ireland, CCPR/C/IRL/CO/4, para. 15).

What happened at UPR 1?

14 recommendations were made and accepted. Updates were provided by the Government in its interim report.<sup>247</sup>

Information submitted for UPR 2

Regarding recommendations 106.2 and 106.3, the State has not ratified the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture (OP CAT),<sup>248</sup> nor begun the process of establishing a National Preventive Mechanism.

Contrary to recommendations 106.36, 106.37, 106.38, 106.39, 106.40 and 106.44, although the Irish Prison Service has put in place a Strategic plan<sup>249</sup> to end "slopping out" by the end of 2016<sup>250</sup> a significant amount of prisoners still slop out.<sup>251</sup> The Government has also failed to implement other commitments including replacement of wings A and B in Limerick prison.<sup>252</sup>

Regarding recommendation 106.42, plans to build a new prison are welcomed, but the proposal, which allows for double occupancy of cells sized for one person, is regressive and contrary to international standards.<sup>253</sup>

Contrary to recommendations 106.41, 106.44 and 106.45, overcrowding is still prevalent in Irish prisons.<sup>254</sup> In relation to 106.47, overuse of solitary confinement is of serious concern.<sup>255</sup> Regarding 107.34, remand and convicted prisoners continue to be housed together.<sup>256</sup>

Children continue to be detained in adult prisons and remand is significantly overused.<sup>258</sup>

Despite enactment of legislation to offer an alternative to detention for not paying fines,<sup>259</sup> 9,000 people were committed for such an offence in 2014.<sup>260</sup>

The Inspector of Prisons has identified a culture of abuse of power in prisons.<sup>261</sup>

UPR 2: Your Rights. Right Now. Recommendations

Ratify OP-CAT and create an effective and independent National Preventative Mechanism to include a fully independent complaints mechanism, an Office of Prison Ombudsman and a strengthened Office of the Inspector of Prisons.

Eliminate the practice of "slopping out" and bring prisons in line with international standards.

Ensure that children's detention centres guarantee, at a minimum, protection of rights provided by international law.

Remove all children from adult prison.

Increase and promote the use of existing alternatives to detention and to continue to legislate for additional effective alternatives to detention.

List of Recommendations

Background & Framework

Incorporate human rights and equality impact assessments into the budgetary processes, recognising the State's minimum core obligations under international human rights law.

Ensure the State's budgetary policy is informed by human rights/equality standards and based on disaggregated data.

Integrate the framework of the Guiding Principles on Extreme Poverty and Human Rights in decision-making as part of a long term anti-poverty strategy.

Ensure that the IDCHR operates transparently and allows for meaningful engagement with civil society.

Immediately respond to outstanding recommendations from the Constitutional Convention and indicate which issues will be put to referendum and when.

Historical Abuse of Women and Children in Medical/ Institutional Care

Implement full and independent inquiries into the practice of symphysiotomy and the treatment of women in Magdalene laundries, leading, where wrongdoing is identified, to prosecutions.

Adopt and implement a consistent approach, in line with international human rights law, to all inquiries into the historical abuse of women and children.

Abolish redress scheme waivers that prevent survivors from exercising their constitutional rights on disaggregated data.

Freedom of Religion or Belief

Amend Article 40.6.1 of the Constitution to remove the offence of blasphemy from Irish law.

Replace the religious oaths in Articles 12.8, 31.4 and 34.5 of the Constitution and all oaths in court with neutral declarations.

Right to Education

Amend Section 15 of the Education Act 1998, Section 7(3)(c) of the Equal Status Act 2000, and Section 37(1) of the Employment Equality Act 1998 to oblige publicly funded schools to deliver educational services, including employment, state curriculum and enrolment, in an objective and pluralistic manner.

Accelerate the divestment programme for primary and post-primary schools and ensure the widest possible availability of multi and non-denominational schools.

Rights of Persons with Disabilities

Publish a roadmap of legislative reforms and set a concrete timeline for UNCRPD ratification.

Publish a plan for the full commencement of the EPSEN Act 2004, Disability Act 2005, and Citizens Information Act 2007.

Introduce a statutory transport subsidy scheme for people with disabilities.

Remove barriers to employment for people with disabilities.

Legislate to officially recognise Irish Sign Language.

Legal Protection of Economic, Social & Cultural (ESC) Rights

Withdraw the State's reservations under ICESCR and ratify OP-ICESCR.

Respond to the recommendation of the Constitutional Convention on ESC rights.

Bring Ireland's equality legislation in line with Article 2(2) ICESCR by widening the grounds upon which discrimination is prohibited, including socio-economic status.

Right to the Highest Attainable Standard of Health

Provide a concrete plan and timeline for the roll out of universal healthcare.

Introduce targeted measures to combat overcrowding and waiting times in access to healthcare.

Whilst transitioning to universal healthcare, introduce a common waiting list for treatment in publicly funded hospitals for private and public patients.

Publish the National Sexual Health Strategy with appropriate focus on prevention of HIV/AIDS.

Efforts targeting opiate, non-opiate and poly-substance use should be introduced.

Right to Adequate Housing

Prioritise the family homelessness crisis with a view to introducing immediate relief and long-term solutions.

Increase and fast-track the provision of social housing.

Expand the State legal aid scheme to include cases involving eviction from social housing.

Extend the remit of the PRTB to local authority tenancies, including social housing eligibility, repairs/maintenance, rent and rent arrears.

Introduce legislative and policy measures to ensure rent supplement/HAP can meet market rent.

Right to Work

Adequately protect the right of freelance/atypical workers to collective bargaining.

Gender Equality

Ensure an independent review of the National Women's Strategy and devise a consultative process on its successor.

Prioritise the submission of Ireland's combined 6th and 7th Periodic Reports to CEDAW.

Set timeframes within which gender balance on corporate boards must be progressed and steps taken to reduce the gender pay gap.

Violence against Women

Sign and ratify the Istanbul Convention.

Ensure consistent, independent, data collection on domestic and sexual violence.

Make legislative provision to allow migrants who experience domestic violence to apply for independent residence permits.

Adequately fund domestic and sexual violence support and advocacy services.

LGBTI Rights

Introduce legislation to regulate surrogacy and ensure legal provisions apply equally to same-sex and opposite-sex couples.

Prioritise measures to address the discriminatory impact of Section 37(1) of the Employment Equality Act 1998.

Extend protections against discrimination on the grounds of 'gender identity' and/or 'gender expression' in all equality policy and legislation.

Ensure that Trans people have access to regional healthcare services and quality, timely specialist support services, including mental health services.

Amend the Gender Recognition Act 2015 so that Trans and intersex young people can avail of legal recognition that is quick, transparent and accessible.

Enact legislation to ensure LGBTI persons are no longer discriminated against in relation to pension provision.

Mental Health

Enact the Assisted Decision-Making (Capacity) Bill 2013 and ensure that it and the Mental Health Act 2001 comply with the UNCPRD.

Strictly regulate non-consensual treatment.

Train relevant healthcare staff on community-based care models and alternatives to non-consensual treatment and adopt holistic approaches for treatment options.

Involve persons concerned in decisions around community-based living.

Fully implement and update Ireland's Mental Health Strategy including recommendations around social inclusion.

Rights of Older People

Introduce an implementation plan for the National Positive Ageing Strategy.

Examine the impact of austerity measures on older people with a view to ensuring support services are sufficiently resourced.

Introduce targeted measures to combat waiting times under the Nursing Home Support Strategy.

Ensure that funding and allocation of home help hours matches the growing ageing population and demand for such service.

Develop a care system which enables older people to have a choice around their long term care needs.

Reproductive Rights

Repeal Article 40.3.3 of the Irish Constitution.

Decriminalise abortion by repealing sections 22 and 23 of the PLDPA 2013.

Repeal the Abortion Information Act 1995.

Provide a human rights compliant framework for abortion, in law and in practice.

Rights of the Child

Fully incorporate the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child into domestic law.

Enact legislation to fully implement Article 42A of the Constitution.

Ratify the Second Optional Protocol to the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child.

Ban corporal punishment in all settings.

Increase investment in early childhood care and education to the current OECD average of 0.8 per cent GDP at a minimum.

Legislate for the mandatory provision of confidential victim support services free of charge before, during and, for an appropriate time, after criminal proceedings, in line with Article 8 of the EU Victims' Directive

Traveller & Roma Rights

Recognise Travellers as a distinct ethnic group without further delay.

Develop and implement a progressive National Traveller and Roma Integration Strategy, in line with human rights commitments.

Establish concrete measures to combat discrimination and ensure equal access and improved outcomes for Travellers and Roma in relation to education, employment, health, and participation.

Introduce legally binding targets for municipal authorities so that adequate accommodation for Travellers is provided.

International Assistance and Cooperation

Make an explicit commitment to meet the UN target of 0.7% ODA/GNI by 2020.

Establish greater coherence across government departments to ensure fiscal policies do not promote inequitable growth, contribute to further marginalisation of people and inequality between men and women in Ireland and internationally.

Ensure Irish companies and individuals are adhering to international law including human rights standards and international best practice standards for business.

Introduce periodic independent, participatory impact assessments of any major changes to the Irish tax code for potential spill-over effects on developing countries.

Immigration & Asylum/ Domestic Workers

Amend the General Scheme of the International Protection Bill to address family reunification, best interests of the child and the legal framework for reception conditions.

Pending abolition, significantly reform the direct provision system, and extend the remit of the Ombudsman for Children to include oversight of the direct provision system or alternative accommodation arranged by the Reception and Integration Agency.

Undertake comprehensive immigration legislative reform, including giving greater protection to undocumented migrants, and amend the European Communities (Free Movement of Persons) (No. 2) Regulations 2006.

Fully implement the ILO Domestic Workers Convention.

Publish a National Action Plan to Prevent and Combat Human Trafficking.

Develop a comprehensive victim identification and protection procedure with the involvement of civil society for the early identification of victims of trafficking.

Ensure independent training and testing of interpreters.

Hate Crime & Discrimination

Legislate to introduce aggravated offences and enhanced sentencing where evidence of bias as a motivating or demonstrable factor exists.

Monitor the implementation of hate crime laws from inception, focusing in particular on training, reporting, recording, investigation, prosecution and sentencing.

Mainstream a victim orientation throughout the criminal justice system.

Prisons/Detention

Ratify OP-CAT and create an effective and independent National Preventative Mechanism to include a fully independent complaints mechanism, an Office of Prison Ombudsman and a strengthened Office of the Inspector of Prisons.

Eliminate the practice of "slopping out" and bring prisons in line with international standards.

Ensure that children's detention centres guarantee, at a minimum, protection of rights provided by international law.

Remove all children from adult prison.

Increase and promote the use of existing alternatives to detention and to continue to legislate for additional effective alternatives to detention.

Annex F

List of additional issues raised during consultations

Rights of Persons with Disabilities

Make available adequate services for deaf prisoners who currently are one of the most vulnerable groups within the prison community.

Rights of Older People

Review the prescription charge policy for older people. For older people in receipt of multiple prescriptions, this increase in the cost of medicine has had very real repercussions.

Rights of Rights of Persons with Disabilities

Increase the size of car parking spaces to ensure greater accessibility for those with mobility issues.

Ensure that the Assisted Decision-Making (Capacity) Bill 2013 fully respects the right to legal capacity in accordance with Article 12 of the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. #### Right to Life and Right to Freedom from Torture and Other Inhuman or Degrading Treatment or Punishment

Review and if necessary strengthen legislation governing the search and inspection of suspected rendition flights to ensure that police authorities have the necessary power in this regard.

Establish a robust and transparent system for identifying aircraft, operators and crews using Irish territory or airports to commit or assist abuses of human rights, including renditions.

Establish an independent and impartial public inquiry into the use of Irish territory, and in particular Shannon airport, in renditions.

Put in place procedures to ensure that weapons, munitions and associated equipment being transited through Irish territory and airspace are not destined for countries where they could be used to commit human rights violations and war crimes.

Review and if necessary strengthen legislation to ensure that civil and police authorities have the necessary power to inspect any aircraft suspected to be carrying munitions or war.

Equality and Non-Discrimination

Adequately resource the Equality Tribunal to combat current delays.

Put in place a system of sanctions for failure to comply with ‘Public Duty’ measures under the Human Rights and Equality Commission Act.

Right to an Adequate Standard of Living/Social Security

Introduce a living wage in Ireland.

supports are in place for one- parent families, including a review of the impact of changes to rules governing the One Parent Family Allowance.

Ensure that individuals leaving the sex-trade are entitled to a social-protection payment and do not face any impediments due to the nature of their previous employment.

Rights of the Child

Adopt a consistent legal age definition of a child that applies across all government departments and services.

Establish the required juvenile justice infrastructure that takes into account the specific vulnerabilities of children.

Strengthen community supports to divert young people away from the care and juvenile justice systems.

Fast track all legal cases of a sexual nature involving young people.

Review the role of social works to ensure that their case loads are set at a reasonable and realistic level.

Adopt necessary measures, particularly adequate resourcing for alternative education settings, to ensure that young people experiencing medical, mental health, social, behavioural and other issues are not excluded from the education system.

Establish a standardised and adequately resourced after care system available to all young people leaving the care system at 18.

Make available adequate training for judges and other legal professionals in child development and children's rights.

Extend the Community Childcare Subvention Programme to all early years' services; it should reform the administrative procedures so that families can take up subsidised places at any time of the year.

Ensure all paid childminders are regulated.

Publish a rights-based National Early Years Strategy accompanied by an adequately resource implementation plan. This should also address the inclusion of children with disabilities and children from minority groups such as Traveller and Roma children in early years services.

Ensure that Tusla – the Child and Family Agency is adequately funded and staffed to assess child protection referrals and respond to them in a timely and appropriate manner.

Put an end to the privatisation of care services.

Right of the Asylum Seekers

Adopt all necessary measures to make further education accessible for asylum seekers, including economic accessibility.

Ensure that children born in Ireland do not have to seek asylum.

Take steps to combat the trafficking of people for illicit purposes, such as cannabis cultivation, and ensure that these individuals are not placed in detention upon identification.

Ensure that individuals in Direct Provision have access to adequate healthcare.

This includes access to reproductive healthcare and mental health services.

Rights of Travellers/Roma

Reform the law in relation to Licences. Section 19 of the Intoxicating Liquor Act 2003 needs to be repealed, to bring Ireland into compliance with the European Union Race Directive. This has a negative impact on the Traveller community.

Extend the remit of the Press Ombudsman to allow for greater powers to sanction media outlets in order to combat discriminatory stereotypes portrayed by the media.

Implement initiatives around Traveller horse ownership which is a cultural trait of many Travellers around the country.

Ensure that any targeted Garda task forces do not disproportionately impact on Roma or Travellers.

Ensure greater transparency and accountability for the underutilisation of grants in relation to the provision of culturally acceptable accommodation for travellers.

Allocate funding to support local Traveller projects to develop the capacity and competence of members of the Traveller and Roma communities to partake in the political structures in Ireland and at a European level.

The State must ensure that the cultural history and heritage of Travellers is promoted, protected and acknowledged within the State curriculum, this can be achieved by the inclusion of Traveller representation on education boards and across all variants of the Irish education system.

Take into account the specific needs of women and members of the LGBT community within the Traveller and Roma communities in all future service level planning with a view to ensuring that specific and real action is taken to ensure inclusion of marginalised groups within the Traveller/Roma communities.

Ensure that a policy is in place to combat mental health problems and the risk of suicide, which exist in the Traveller/Roma community.

Specific actions, including affirmative actions as required, should be included in the HSE National Service and Operational Plans for implementation across the country, including in the areas of mental health, counselling, substance addiction services and suicide ideation.

Prioritise and implement anti-racism training and the development of codes of practice for service providers.

Implement the recommendations of the All Ireland Traveller Health Study.

Ensure that an ethnic identifier and appropriate staff training in data collection is applied across all Governmental Departments.

Ensure that Travellers are not stigmatised by the criminal justice system, by introducing “spent convictions” and an adequately resourced community return programme.

Apply pressure on other States to ensure that the rights of the Roma community are upheld.

Housing

Allocate adequate resources to improve sub-standard conditions in various local authority flat complexes.

Introduce rent caps in the private rented sector to combat escalating rental prices.

Consider the use of empty housing developments (ghost estates) to tackle the current lack of housing stock.

Accept to be bound by Article 31 of the European Social Charter, which deals with the right to housing.

Amend the Housing Acts 1966 to 2014 by repealing those provisions which have been found to be incompatible with the European Convention on Human Rights.

Expedite the implementation of the Social Housing Strategy 2020 with a view to increasing the supply of social and affordable housing

Introduce legislative measures to increase security of tenure for tenants.

Ensure that tenants in mortgaged properties are afforded effective protection from eviction.

Increase maximum rent supplement and housing assistance payment limits with a view to ensuring that those whose means are insufficient to meet their housing needs are able to access accommodation in the private rented sector.

Ensure that local authorities fulfil their statutory function of inspecting and enforcing minimum standards in rented dwellings.

Take steps to ensure that the non-payment of water charges will not result in the termination tenancies.

LGBT Rights

Introduce adequate measures to combat mental health problems in the transgender community.

Ensure that transgender people can access healthcare tailored to their specific needs, in particular, for those wishing to transition to their preferred gender.

Roll out a targeted advertising campaign, highlighting the harmful effects of harassment and discrimination against the LGBT community.

Ensure that the rights of inter-sex people are respected. This includes the issue surrounding the imposition of gender at an early age.

Violence Against Women

Consider removing, or amending, the determination of property interests in issuing barring orders, in particular, where it conflicts with the best interests of the children.

Human Rights Education

Mandate the Department of Education and Skills to ensure that the education system at all levels becomes the primary source of human rights education and promotion, ensure respect and protection for all children, while developing a universal human rights culture.

Structural Changes to Government Departments

Establish a Civil and Human Rights Government Department with responsibility for legal changes to guarantee specific rights in line with international human rights law.of the children.

Human Rights Defenders

Continue to demonstrate strong international leadership on the protection of human rights defenders, in particular by making recommendations for the protection of human rights defenders when engaging with the Universal Periodic Review and in leading or co-sponsoring resolutions on the protection of civil society space, the prevention of reprisals, and the protection of human rights defenders at the Human Rights Council.

Consult closely with human rights defenders in developing a national action plan on business and human rights and ensure the plan contains measures to support and protect their vital work to promote corporate respect for human rights and corporate accountability for violations.

Continue and strengthen the provision of support, including financial and diplomatic support, to a diverse range of national, regional and international NGOs providing advice, protection and support to human rights defenders.

Continue to ensure that embassy staff pro-actively implement the Guidelines for Irish Embassies and Missions for the protection of human rights defenders.

Demonstrate international leadership by enacting specific national legislation which enshrines the right to access and communicate with international human rights bodies and which prohibits any form of intimidation or reprisal in association with such communication.

Annex G

Text of Constitutional Referendum on Marriage Equality

The constitutional amendment approved by the People of Ireland inserted a new Article into the Constitution which reads:

Article 41(4)

‘Marriage may be contracted in accordance with law by two persons without distinction as to their sex’.

Text of Constitutional Amendment on Children

The constitutional amendment approved by the People of Ireland inserted a new Article into the Constitution which reads:

Children – Article 42A

1 The State recognises and affirms the natural and imprescriptible rights of all children and shall, as far as practicable, by its laws protect and vindicate those rights.

2.1 In exceptional cases, where the parents, regardless of their marital status, fail in their duty towards their children to such extent that the safety or welfare of any of their children is likely to be prejudicially affected, the State as guardian of the common good shall, by proportionate means as provided by law, endeavour to supply the place of the parents, but always with due regard for the natural and imprescriptible rights of the child.

2.2 Provision shall be made by law for the adoption of any child where the parents have failed for such a period of time as may be prescribed by law in their duty towards the child and where the best interests of the child so require.

3 Provision shall be made by law for the voluntary placement for adoption and the adoption of any child.

4.1 Provision shall be made by law that in the resolution of all proceedings –

- (i) brought by the State, as guardian of the common good, for the purpose of preventing the safety and welfare of any child from being prejudicially affected, or
- (ii) concerning the adoption, guardianship or custody of, or access to, any child the best interests of the child shall be the paramount consideration.

4.2 Provision shall be made by law for securing, as far as practicable, that in all proceedings referred to in subsection 1° of this section in respect of any child who is capable of forming his or her own views, the views of the child shall be ascertained and given due weight having regard to the age and maturity of the child.

61 Section 7(c) of the Equal Status Act 2000 permits discrimination in enrolment policies, allowing schools promoting a particular religious ethos to prioritise children of a particular denomination for admission, including children from outside the local school catchment area, over local children from other faiths and children from non-religious or atheist backgrounds or families who prefer not to educate their children in a particular denomination. In its current form, draft legislation to reform school admissions does not propose to amend this provision.

62 This results in parents of other denominations or none, including those who regard themselves as atheistic, having little or no choice but to enrol children in denominational education, particularly when no alternative option is available in their area. 64 In addition, preparation for religious sacraments is conducted during school hours. Rule 68 of the Rules of National Schools states that “Religious Instruction is by far the most important, as its subject-matter, God’s honour and service, includes the proper use of all man’s faculties, and affords the most powerful inducements to their proper use.

Religious Instruction is, therefore, a fundamental part of the school course, and a religious spirit should inform and vivify the whole work of the school.”

73 Irish Sign Language (ISL), the indigenous language used by the Deaf community in Ireland, is still not officially recognized. (Irish Deaf Society, 'Irish Sign Language Recognition: Information Leaflet', Dublin: IDS). There are an estimated 40,000 ISL daily users of which 5000 are Deaf people who have difficulty in accessing public services and information on their rights and entitlements (Irish Deaf Society, 'Irish Sign Language Recognition: Information Leaflet', Dublin: IDS). Despite the clear recognition of native signed languages in the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities which Ireland has not yet ratified, proposed legislation to officially recognise ISL was rejected by the Seanad (Senate) in January 2014 (Recognition of Irish Sign Language for the Deaf Community Bill 2013). The Minister for State clarified that the Government did 'not want to see scarce resources, particularly at this time of extremely scarce resources, used without the service being put in place'. (Kathleen Lynch TD, Minister of State with responsibility for Disability, Older People, Equality & Mental Health, Seanad Debates: Recognition of Irish Sign Language for the Deaf Community Bill 2013 – Second Stage, 22 January 2014). Coupled with a complete funding cut to the IDS Deaf Advocacy Service in 2014, which was later reversed as a temporary measure, it is not clear how the State intends to progress this important issue and ensure the rights of the Deaf Community are protected and respected. 94 This is due to various factors including inadequacy of rent supplement, particularly in Dublin given higher and rising rents, rising rents and repossession by banks, of private accommodation in mortgage arrears. See for example, Focus Ireland, Press Release, 16 December 2014, "Focus Ireland Warns that Government's Inaction on Rent Supplement and Rents Regulation is forcing more Families into Homelessness". Available from: <http://bit.ly/1E4eFM1> [Accessed 18 September 2015].

95 Under Irish law, the State does not have an obligation to provide such accommodation. The Housing Act 1988 places particular responsibility on local authorities to provide for the accommodation needs of homeless persons. Local authorities are obliged to carry out regular assessments of accommodation needs in their area. The local authority is not obliged to provide housing in individual cases. The Act requires the local authority to take the needs of homeless people into account in an overall sense in its provision of housing under the Housing Acts. There is, however, no express obligation in the Act, nor in law, to provide emergency accommodation. Families, often with very young children, are regularly being accommodated by the State on a night to night basis or very temporary basis in different bed and breakfasts and hotels, most frequently in one room together, almost always with no cooking facilities, and the family supports. The figures available for those experiencing homelessness in Ireland are less detailed. In April 2015, 295 families experiencing homelessness were living in commercial hotels in Dublin and 63 new families presented as homeless in Dublin. Between 20 and 26 April 2015: 504 families, including 1118 children, were recorded as homeless in Ireland. 100 A new Housing Assistance Payment (HAP) is being rolled out in Ireland to replace rent supplement. (s37, Housing (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 2014). To remain on a list for social housing, the household must apply to go on the housing "transfer" list. When approved for HAP, the household receives a letter and a form from the local authority to apply to go on the transfer list. The household has just two weeks from the date of the letter to apply to have any time spent on the housing list before entering HAP to be taken into account on the list. If a household does not so apply within that two week window, and applies later on, none of the time spent on the housing list is carried over to the transfer list. HAP represents a very important change to the social housing assistance landscape. Once a household is in receipt of HAP, they are deemed to have their housing need met and will be taken off or not put on the housing list. It is of real concern that the State, with this scheme, is moving from the social housing list system, which aims to provide secure long-term housing for those who are homeless, to a system that relies on the private rental sector to provide sufficient housing. There is no evidence that landlords are more willing to accept HAP than rent supplement.

(ii) disputes concerning rights and interests in or over land”. However, Section 28(9)(c)(i) as amended provides “Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph (a) and subject to the other provisions of this Act, legal aid may be granted – (i) in respect of proceedings under the Landlord and Tenant Acts, 1967 to 1994 (in so far as they relate to residential property), the Residential Tenancies Act 2004.” Local authority tenancies are not covered by these Acts.

109 The PRTB provides independent and impartial mediation and adjudication and is a financially efficient forum for landlords and tenants to make complaints to.

110 Tenants of social housing cannot refer issues in respect of housing conditions, e.g. damp, mould, broken windows, to the independent adjudication of the PRTB. The tenant can only refer directly to the local authority and as such there is a clear imbalance in negotiating power to resolve the matter. A local authority tenant could potentially sue for damages for breach of contract in the District Court but in order to apply for injunctive relief they must go to the Circuit Court or High Court which are costly, extremely adversarial, and very intimidating particularly if a tenant has to represent themselves.

115 Ireland accepted Recommendation 106.59 on this issue. In April 2011 the Government made a decision to advertise vacancies on State Boards. However, this decision was applied inconsistently until February 2015 when www.stateboards.ie was launched. While the European Social Fund PROGRESS is positive action that should be commended and reported on, this project is a pilot programme. Its focus is limited to a small number of civil servants, and its impact should not be overstated. Any actions focusing beyond the civil service within this programme will take place within a seminar or conference format and do not have any required outcomes beyond the provision of information. Government must clearly articulate the actions and directions that corporate boards must take, and demand action within a specific timeframe.

Government of Ireland (2007) National Women’s Strategy 2007-2016, Dublin: Stationery Office, p. 27. As highlighted also FLAC, (November 2014) Our Voices, Our Rights: a parallel report in response to Ireland’s Third Report under the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, para. 7.2.

117 The current Minister of State for Equality recently flagged his intention to initiate this process, but first a comprehensive and thorough independent evaluation of the current Strategy and its implementation is needed in order to plan effectively for a new Strategy and an accompanying action plan. This evaluation would allow for the identification of particular policy areas where implementation has been slow or non-existent, which will in turn inform a new Strategy.

121 Ireland is one of only 9 countries out of 47 Council of Europe member States which has not signed the Council of Europe Convention on Preventing and Combating Violence against Women and Domestic Violence (Istanbul Convention).

122 It is contended that the barrier to signature and ratification identified by the Government is Article 52 of the Convention which provides for emergency barring orders which are not provided for under Irish law. Notwithstanding the need to have such legislation in place in order to ratify the Convention, there is a clear need, in any event, for barring orders to be available outside of traditional Court hours, so that victims of domestic violence do not find themselves without protection for extended periods of time. Recent new commitments by the Minister for Justice and Equality on the issue are available from: <http://www.justice.ie/en/JELR/Pages/PR15000436>; <http://www.rte.ie/news/2015/0724/716887-domestic-violence-barring-orders/> [Accessed 21 September 2015].

123 In addition, the State should consider removing or amending the determination of property interest in issuing barring orders, in particular, where it conflicts with the best interests of the children.

124 Similar concern was expressed by UN Human Rights Committee in 2014. UN Human Rights Committee concluding observations on Ireland’s fourth periodic report, CCPR/C/IRL/CO/4, para. 8. Despite the work of COSC (National Office for the Prevention of Domestic, Sexual and Gender-Based Violence) and its Data Committee, no public data exists on domestic violence offences and prosecutions.

125 Ireland’s Sexual Abuse and Violence in Ireland (SAVI) report was published in 2002. The newly-formed (2014) Child and Family Agency (TUSLA) has been tasked with data collection in this area; despite it being a government agency responsible primarily for improving outcomes and wellbeing of children.

126 In 2014 the Dublin Rape Crisis Centre (DRCC)’s National 24 hour helpline took a total of 12,059 counselling contacts. There was a dramatic increase of 30% in first time contacts compared to 2013. There was an increase of 14% in the number of calls specifically relating to adult rape. (Dublin Rape Crisis Centre (DRCC): Annual Statistics for 2014. In relation to domestic violence in 2013, 46,137 helpline calls were answered and 8,033 individual women and 3,424 individual children received support from domestic violence support services. Safe Ireland, (2013) Domestic Violence National Statistics 2013. Available from: <www.safeireland.ie> [Accessed 18 September 2015]. Demand on services has greatly increased. For example the number of women receiving support from a domestic violence service has increased by over 36% from 2008 to 2012. Over the same time period core HSE funding to services has been cut by 14% in total, with some services being cut as much as 37%. Safe Ireland, (2014) Safety in a time of Crisis 2014. Available from: <www.safeireland.ie> [Accessed 18 September 2015]. Domestic and sexual abuse services were previously funded by HSE but now come under the remit of TUSLA, the Child and Family Support Agency).

Available from: www.safeireland.ie [Accessed 18 September 2015]. Further cuts to domestic violence services are planned by TUSLA Child and Family Agency for 2015. Refuge provision remains inadequate and many women and children are unable to access refuge accommodation each year. In 2013, 3,494 requests for refuge could not be met because the refuge was full. Safe Ireland, (2014) Safety in a time of Crisis 2014. The Council of Europe recommends that there should be a target by member states of at least 1 refuge place per 10,000 of population and Ireland seriously lags behind this modest target. (Safe Ireland report that Ireland is ranked 24th in Europe, only meeting one third of the minimum standards for refuge provision, translating to 141 family places for women and children).

128 The Habitual Residence Condition (HRC) is a qualifying condition for social welfare payments which was introduced on 1 May 2004 in response to EU enlargement. All persons seeking means-tested social welfare payments and Child Benefit after that date have been required to satisfy this condition. The HRC applies to Irish citizens as well as non-citizens but it is usually much easier for Irish citizens to show a sufficient connection to the Irish State in order to satisfy the Condition than for non-citizens. The five criteria used by the Department of Social Protection (formerly the Department of Social and Family Affairs) to determine whether a person satisfies the Habitual Residence Condition are: 1) The length and continuity of living in the State or another country; 2) The length and reasons for any absence from the State; 3) The nature and pattern of the person’s employment; 4) The person’s main centre of interest; 5) The future intentions of the person applying for the social welfare scheme. See Free Legal Advice Centres, Guide to Habitual Residence condition. Available from: http://www.flac.ie/download/pdf/habitual\_residence\_condition\_guide\_final.pdf [Accessed 18 September 2015].

129 For women trying to leave a situation of violence, if they do not have access to financial resources from the State, it can impact on their ability to successfully leave a violent relationship long term and it also impacts on their ability to access a refuge because a woman generally has to be in receipt of social welfare to access a refuge beyond an emergency period.

130 Migrants experiencing domestic violence should also be provided with access to safe emergency housing and essential welfare benefits, pending determination of applications to remain in Ireland. However, concern was expressed at the removal of surrogacy provisions from the original author of the Bill. review-ireland-national-interim-report-march-2014 [Accessed 17 September 2015]. In particular it noted the publication of the Assisted Decision-Making (Capacity) Bill 2013 and the review of the Mental Health Act 2001 by an Expert Group. Update on 107.16 in Government mid-term report (get para number) ‘‘The Assisted Decision-Making (Capacity) Bill 2013 was published on 17 July 2013 and provides a series of options to support people who have difficulties in terms of decision making capacity to exercise autonomy in decision-making to the greatest extent possible, in line with the principles contained in UN CRPD. Consideration of the Bill by the Oireachtas (Houses of Parliament) began in December 2013. The Mental Health Act 2001 is currently being reviewed by an Expert Group which was set up by the Minister. The review will introduce a rights based approach to mental health legislation and will prioritise the needs of the person using our services in the first instance. The final report of the Expert Group carrying out the review is expected by the end of March, 2014.’’ Concerns have been raised that the recommendations of the report of the Expert Group on the Mental Health Act are not in line with the UNCRPD.

144 The Bill completed the committee stage on 17 June 2015. House of the Oireachtas, Bills 1997-2015, Assisted Decision-Making (Capacity) Bill, <http://www.oireachtas.ie/viewdoc.asp?fn=/documents/bills28/bills/2013/8313/document1.htm> [Accessed 19 June 2015].

147 The Expert Group in its review, recommended a redefinition of consent, to ‘‘also include consent given by a patient with the support of a family member, friend or appointed ‘carer’, ‘advocate’ or support decision maker appointed under the proposed capacity legislation’’. However, during consultations, concern was expressed that mental health service users will not be able to fully avail of this support under the terms of the Assisted Decision-Making (Capacity) Bill 2013. The Bill in its current form provides for the appointment of a ‘decision-making assistant.’ Nevertheless, concern was expressed that ‘‘all a clinician would need to do to challenge any decision made with the support of a decision-making assistant is to request a capacity assessment. If the person is assessed as lacking mental capacity on that point (according to section 10(7)(b) of the proposed new Bill), which is highly likely if they are making use of the expanded definition of ‘consent’, then the decision can be over-ridden. The introduction of mental capacity requirements in ‘assisted decision-making agreements’ is likely then to divert resources to onerous mental capacity testing and ongoing coercive practices.’’ Concern was expressed that ‘‘assessing capacity will become the focus rather than understanding and facilitating individual support needs. Statutory bodies concerned with training care staff, we fear, will focus on how to question someone’s capacity rather than helping staff to address social support needs and support a person’s decision making.’’ See also: Equality, Dignity and Human Rights-Does the Assisted Decision Making (Capacity) Bill 2013 fulfil Ireland’s human rights obligations under the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. 148 During consultations, concern was expressed about the differences in standards applied to people who are voluntarily and involuntarily detained. 155 The property tax and particularly the lack of waiver system for those on low incomes has been identified as having an especially damaging impact. The latest official poverty statistics from the Central Statistics Office indicate that 9.2% of people aged 65 years and over were ‘at risk’ of poverty in 2013. Since 2009, the income of an older person dependent on the State pension and the Household Benefits Package has fallen by €13.18 per week. This amounts to almost 5 per cent of their income since 2009. Research undertaken by the Vincentian Partnership for Social Justice in 2013 (VPSJ (2013) Changes in the cost of a MESL in Comparison to CPI Inflation – available at <http://www.budgeting.ie> noted that while overall CPI fell by 0.15% in the period 2008 to 2013, the cost of a Minimum Essential Standard of Living for a lone pensioner and a pensioner couple rose by 5.03% and 7.34% respectively.

156 In particular, the costs of heating, lighting and fuel have risen substantially in recent years. In their latest, available research, the Vincentian Partnership for Social Justice, - see V PSJ (2015) Minimum Essential Standard of Living 2015 – available at <http://www.budgeting.ie> – which takes account of last year’s increase, says that pensioners living alone face a shortfall against the minimum standard of €16.07 for those on a non-contributory pension, and €6.47 for those on a contributory pension.

157 Citizens Information, Budget 2014, Medical cards and GP Visit Cards, ‘The income limits for medical cards for people aged over 70 will reduce from €600/€1,200 per week (single person/couple) to €500/ €900 per week.’ Available from: http://www.citizensinformation.ie/en/money\_and\_tax/budget\_2014.html [last accessed on 18 September 2015].

158 For older people in receipt of multiple prescriptions, this increase in the cost of medicine has had very real repercussions. In 2013, 18 per cent of all medical card prescriptions were for six items or more (HSE (2013) PCRS Statistical Analysis of Claims and Payments 2013 available at <http://www.hse.ie/>). As people age, they require more medication. Thirty-one per cent of over 65s have five or more prescriptions, rising to 36 per cent in the over 75s (<http://tilda.tcd.ie/assets/pdf/PolypharmacyReport.pdf>). Prescription charges under the DPS scheme at the moment amount to €1,728 per year. This is a very substantial portion of an older person’s income, almost a month’s income for a person on a gross income of €501 per week.

159 In 2014 there was a waiting list of more than 2,000 people and a waiting time of fifteen weeks. In 2013 the waiting time was 1 week and in 2015 this has risen to 4 weeks. In April 2015, 23,924 people were being supported under the Nursing Home Support Scheme. The allocated additional funding in Budget 2015 (€10 million) and April (€44 million) has helped but waiting times remain far higher than in 2013 when the waiting time was 1 week and 23,775 people were being supported under the scheme.

160 The Nursing Home Support Scheme Act 2009 provides for State financial support for long term care in a nursing home. There are clear eligibility rules regarding the Scheme. Accessing long term care in the community is discretionary, eligibility and types of supports provided are subject to local policies and resources, Hence, many older people are not afforded the opportunity to remain living in their own homes, available from: <http://www.irishstatutebook.ie/eli/2009/act/15/enacted/en/html> [Accessed 21 September 2015].

For example, in 2014, fear of violating foetal right to life under article 40.3.3 lead doctors to impose a regime of measures to support foetal life on the body of a woman after brain stem death was declared when she was 15 weeks pregnant. The measures were maintained against the wishes of her family, and were only discontinued after a ruling of the High Court. The case highlighted the clinical and ethical impossibility of distinguishing in practice between risk to a woman’s health, where abortion is unlawful, and risk to life, where the law permits abortion. In 2014, a young woman who was pregnant as a result of rape, and who was living within Ireland’s direct provision system for asylum seekers, was unable to gather the necessary travel documents and financial means to travel to a state where abortion is legal. At around 24 weeks gestation, she was assessed under section 9 of the Protection of Life During Pregnancy Act, as being at risk of suicide. However, because the foetus was deemed viable, rather than authorize an abortion, a plan was put in place to deliver a live neonate by caesarean. (Fletcher R. Contesting the cruel treatment of abortion-seeking women. ReprodHealth Matters 2014;22 (44):10– 21.) Two cases have been filed before the UN Human Rights Committee in relation to women who were forced to travel to the United Kingdom to obtain safe and legal abortion services after receiving a fatal foetal anomaly diagnosis.

175 One doctor can make the decision in emergency cases. A pregnant woman who asserts her right to abortion because of physical risk to life under section 7 must be examined by two medical practitioners (an obstetrician and a specialist in a relevant area). However, in response to the contentious discussions of the grounds based on suicide during the parliamentary hearings on the legislation [6,8], the drafters of the Act made the requirements for certification more onerous in cases of suicide risk than when there is physical risk to life. Section 9 provides that three specialists—two psychiatrists and an obstetrician—must jointly certify a woman’s legal entitlement to the “medical procedure”. 187 Start Strong (2014) Childcare – Business or Profession? Dublin: Start Strong, p. 81. Levels of quality in early years care and education are difficult to assess given the lack of official data on services. International rating scales exist that provide comparative standards and tested methodologies but no data from such scales are available for Ireland. E.g. the Early Childhood Environmental Rating Scales and Infant/Toddler Environmental Rating Scale. See <http://ers.fpg.unc.edu/> for further information. Due to the exclusion of childminders from regulation, there is no data on the quality of those services at all. It is estimated that nearly 50,000 young children are cared for by some 19,000 child-minders; Childminders and afterschool services continue to be excluded from quality structures as well as regulations and Garda (police) vetting. Start Strong (2012) Policy Brief – Child-minding: Regulation and recognition, Dublin: Start Strong; Start Strong (2014) Childcare – Business or Profession? Dublin: Start Strong, p. 81. While a national strategy on early years is expected, it has not yet been published. The development of the National Early Years Strategy was first announced in 2012 and an Expert Advisory Group published its recommendations in October 2013. The Strategy should contain a clear and ambitious vision for early years policy and comprehensive measures to improve the quality of early years services.

188 The majority of services are run by private providers to which the State gives capital grants for specific schemes such as the Free Pre-School Year Scheme. While subsidised schemes also exist such as the Community Childcare Subvention Scheme, the scheme is ad hoc and only available in limited parts of the country. The Free Pre School Year is administered by the Department of Children and Youth Affairs and is available to all children between the ages of three years and two months and four years and seven months in September of the relevant year, entitling them to programme-based activities in the year preceding primary school. It is delivered over 38 weeks from September to June and was attended by 67,000 pre-school children (94 per cent of eligible children) in 2013/14 within 4,200 services. The scheme cost €173.8 million in 2014 – representing 18 per cent of the Department of Children and Youth Affairs overall budget for that year. Communications to the Children's Rights Alliance from the Department of Children and Youth Affairs, 6 February 2015. Access rates to the schemes are lower amongst marginalised groups. This includes groups such as Travellers and Roma children and children with disabilities. Department of Children and Youth Affairs (2013) Right from the Start: Report of the Expert Advisory Group on the Early Years Strategy, Dublin: Government Publications, p. 15.

189 Subsidised Schemes exist but only a minority of childcare and after-school places are subsidised, with the largest subsidy scheme (the Community Childcare Subvention) only available through some community based (not-for-profit) childcare services. The Community Childcare Subvention Programme provides subsidised places but the scheme is ad hoc as only certain settings offer these places and places can only be accessed from September of a given year.

190 In January 2015, of the 27,710 child protection cases 'open' to social work teams across the country, there was a backlog of 7,787 (28%) cases that had not been allocated to a social worker. This backlog included 2,235 cases deemed 'high priority'. Tusla, Monthly Management Data Activity Report January 2015). The Health Information and Quality Authority commented in a 2015 inspection report that children deemed to have a high level of need were placed at risk by the failure to allocate a social worker to them, or to give them timely access to child protection and welfare interventions. (Health Information and Equality Authority (2012) Health Information and Quality Authority Regulation Directorate Monitoring Inspection report – Child Protection and Welfare Services under the National Standards for the Protection and Welfare of Children under Section 8(1) (c) of the Health Act 2007 [online], <https://static.rasset.ie/documents/news/hiaq-report-cork.pdf> [Accessed 1 April 2015].

193 There are delays of up to six months. Garda Inspectorate (2014) Crime Investigation Report, Dublin: Garda Inspectorate, p. 50.

194 The courts also have been found to be ill-equipped to deal with this special category of victim, both in terms of facilities and in that many lawyers and judges are simply not trained to handle child victims sensitively. Long delays in bringing cases forward can also affect a child's ability to recall events. Ú. Ni Raifeartaigh (2009) Child sexual abuse cases: the need for cultural change within the criminal justice system, The Bar Review (2009) 14 (5) BR 103.

195 For example, in 2015, a media report highlighted the case of a child who had waited for two years to access counselling – RTE Morning Ireland (March 2015); and K. O'Brien, "Abused Boys Wait Two Years for Counselling", The Irish Examiner, 21 March 2015.) The only counselling service for child victims of sexual abuse in Dublin, the CARI centre, had a waiting list of 30 families in January 2015. For victims of sexual assault under 14 years, there is limited access to specialist services, with just one State service, located in Galway. Victims over 14 years can access specialist integrated Sexual Assault Treatment Units (SATU), however these are unavailable in most parts of Ireland. Draft legislation to transpose the EU Directive on Victims was published in July 2015. The Directive must be transposed into law by 16 November 2015. It stipulates that all child victims shall be presumed to have specific protection needs. It provides for access to support services, free of charge, according to particular needs before, during and for a period after criminal proceedings.

A scheme of the Bill has been proposed and the Bill itself may be proposed in the autumn session of the Parliament. During its review of Ireland’s Third Periodic Report under the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the UN Committee on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights recommended that the State “Expedite the adoption of the International Protection Bill with a view to introducing a single procedure to assess and determine without undue delay all forms of protection status for asylum seekers as well as to strengthen the protection and promotion of their economic, social and cultural rights”, UN Committee on Economic Social and Cultural Rights, concluding observations on the Third Periodic Report of Ireland, E/C.12/IRL/CO/3, para 14 (a). 214 It will abolish the Office of the Refugee Applications Commissioner (ORAC) and examination of international protection claims will be subsumed within the Department of Justice and Equality.

215 The draft General Scheme contains provisions that seek to restrict the existing family reunification entitlements of refugees in Ireland. It is also proposed that a family member who is admitted under family reunification provisions will not be granted a residence permit for the same duration as a protection status holder and the permission will cease to be valid where the person ‘ceases to be a qualified person or family member’. As drafted, no guidance is provided as to the circumstances where a person may ‘cease to be a qualified person or family member’. For example, it is not clear whether a family member could have their permission to reside revoked in circumstances where the protection status holder subsequently granted Irish citizenship by naturalisation or in the event of relationship breakdown.

216 Currently no formal stateless determination procedure exists in Ireland for stateless persons, some of whom may be in need of international protection. This is a significant lacuna given that Ireland is a party to the 1954 UN Convention relating to the Status of Stateless Persons and the 1961 Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness.

217 In respect of the rights of the child, the ‘best interests’ principle is identified in various provisions throughout the draft General Scheme as a relevant consideration. However, the draft legislation should be amended to include express provision for the recognition of the best interests of the child as the primary consideration whenever there is a determination made in respect of a child directly or where a child may be affected by the decision, including deportation decisions.

230 As recommended by the monitoring bodies such as the Council of Europe and the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe.

231 Currently, the Administrative Immigration Arrangements for the Protection of Victims of Trafficking apply only to isolated cases of undocumented third country national victims. The present system of identification precludes the vast majority of victims from the possibility to be formally identified and protected by operating a nationality and immigration status driven approach and interferes with the right of victims of trafficking to seek international protection. This approach to identification has been criticised by virtually all international monitories and Irish NGOs. The failings of the system are evidenced by a recent High Court case (P. v the Chief Superintendent of the Garda National Immigration Bureau, the Director of Public Prosecutions, Ireland and the Attorney General, [2013/795 JR]) concerning a Vietnamese woman who was trafficked for forced criminality. The State failed to identify her and incarcerated her for two years for a crime she committed under duress. Ms. Justice Iseult O'Malley found failures in the Garda investigation and in State policies and procedures for identifying victims of human trafficking.

232 This also applies in police stations, the courts and hospitals.

233 For recent Government statement see: <http://www.justice.ie/en/JELR/Pages/PR15000457> [Accessed 18 September 2015].

234 The Irish Government also needs to work towards addressing the root causes of the crisis by honouring its international development aid commitments and increase investment in inclusive development, decent work and social protection in countries of origin so that migration becomes an option, not a necessity. Please see section on International Assistance and Cooperation for further updates.

239 The Irish State has yet to criminalise the hate element of crime, citing as reasons for its inaction: 1. Generic criminal offences are sufficient to combat hate crime 2. The courts consider racist and xenophobic motivations at sentencing; 3. Introducing aggravated sentencing provisions would have broader ramifications for the criminal law, including a restructuring of penalties for basic offences; 4. The criminal law would in any event be insufficient to challenge hate crime which requires a broader educative measure to combat." Haynes, A., Schweppe, J., Carr, J., Carmody, N. and Enright, S. 242 Official data from the Central Statistics Office for 2013 show that there were 113 hate crimes recorded for 2013 and 53 for 2014. The European Network Against Racism Ireland recorded 137 racist or religiously aggravated crimes in 2014 (including 40 assaults); the Gay and Lesbian Equality Network recorded a further 19 homophobic/transphobic crimes for a seven month period from December 2014 to June 2015 (including 11 assaults); and the Transgender Equality Network Ireland recorded an additional 22 transphobic crimes in 2014 (including 6 assaults, 3 sexual assaults and 1 aggravated sexual assault).

244 The research report Out of the Shadows: Legislating for Hate Crime in Ireland (authored by the Hate and Hostility Research Group, University of Limerick) found a: "a system-wide failure to recognise the harms of hate: this systematic blindness results in a 'disappearing' of the hate element of many crimes in the criminal justice process and a failure to provide victims with appropriate protection under the law. This occurs for a number of reasons: Although individual members of An Garda Síochána work to compensate for the legislative vacuum as regards hate crime, they are hampered in their efforts by a lack of dedicated tools, structures and supports; The term 'hate crime' is not part of the language of An Garda Síochána; Few members of An Garda Síochána have any training in hate crime, its recording, investigation or prosecution; Members of An Garda Síochána have little direction on the treatment of racist incidents, and no access to policy or directives relating to homophobic, transphobic or disablist hate crime among other manifestations; The hate element of a crime is not consistently acknowledged or recorded by An Garda Síochána (and in some cases, cannot be formally flagged); Consequently, and given that it is not core to many of the standard charges which are currently used to address victims' experiences, the hate element of a crime is not consistently investigated by An Garda Síochána; While individual members of An Garda Síochána make great efforts to use existing offences to draw attention to the hate element of a crime, none of the Gardaí we interviewed regarded existing offences as adequate to that task; Where the hate element of a crime is investigated, it is not always raised in court; In some cases, prosecutors feel precluded from raising the hate element of a crime in court; The solicitors and barristers we spoke to, consequently, had limited experience in either prosecuting or defending a hate crime; Where the hate element is raised in court, it is not always addressed. Commissioned by the Irish Council for Civil Liberties, Out of the Shadows was informed by 77 in-depth interviews with victims of hate crime, representatives of Civil Society Organisations (CSOs), criminal justice practitioners, members of An Garda Síochána, probation offices and a number of other relevant experts; a postal survey of barristers and secondary analysis of hate crime reports to CSOs.

245 In 2014 the Minister of State for Equality, New Communities and Culture commissioned a set of legislative proposals to tackle hate crime. The proposals were commissioned following a meeting of NGO Working Group on Hate Crime, established by the Minister in 2013, and produced by the University of Limerick Hate and Hostility Research Group in collaboration with Working Group.
